

Rescuer: 'I Wouldn't Treat a Dog Like That'

Hidden in trees: Shed where Mrs. Knight was imprisoned

By PETER TAYLOR

LADYSMITH — "I wouldn't treat a dog like that," said Tom Aussenegg, a member of a search party who helped lift Mary Knight from under a pile of boards, where she had lain bound for more than 20 hours.

Mr. Aussenegg, 218 Baden-

Powell Street, Ladysmith,

said: "We had difficulty lifting her. I thought someone would step on her, it was such a tight space."

The man who actually found the prominent Ladysmith woman was Sedgewick Barnes, a Chemainus planer mill em-

"When I first stepped into the shed, she was out of my line of vision," he said.

"I went through the door, and started to move things around. I saw her feet, and called for the RCMP."

He said after she was lifted,

he saw her speak to an RCMP constable and a doctor, and then she was taken to hospital.

"Her wrists were bound very tight, she was lying on her back," he said.

Mr. Aussenegg said "just looking in the shed door you couldn't see her, she had been jammed down behind a water tank in a space two feet wide."

Dr. P. J. Mitchell was called to the scene and looked after the elderly woman before she was taken to Ladysmith General Hospital.

Woman Bound in Shed

MEMORY KEY TO KIDNAP MYSTERY

LADYSMITH — The memory of an 82-year-old woman who lies in a hospital bed recovering from a 20-hour ordeal, is the only key which can unlock the mystery of the first recorded kidnap for ransom in B.C. history.

Mary Elizabeth Knight, wife of Ladysmith store owner J. A. Knight, is in Ladysmith General Hospital; she was not in condition to be interviewed by police Wednesday night. (See pictures, Page 6.)

When the interview will take place is up to her doctor.

What that interview produces depends on the circumstances of the abduction of the woman Tuesday morning, and her recollection of the event.

When discovered bound in a shed, Mrs. Knight looked at her two sons, Clarence and Raymond, and asked:

"What are you doing here?"

VOLUNTEERS

A volunteer in a large search party found Mrs. Knight at 8:25 a.m. Wednesday, in a small shed on the Knight's beachfront property on Chemainus Road at Ladysmith.

The same shed was apparently subjected to a quick check by police on Tuesday. But Mrs. Knight, bound and gagged, was buried under wire, two-by-fours and firewood in the shed, and she was not spotted.

Joyce A. Knight, 88, who founded a hardware store in Ladysmith in 1904, the year of the town's incorporation, told police he has received a demand for ransom for safe return of his wife.

$4,000 RANSOM

He said at noon Tuesday he received a telephone call demanding $4,000, to be delivered by 4 p.m.

But no other instructions were given. He said the voice demanding the ransom was that of a man.

Sedgewick Barnes, who found Mrs. Knight in the shed, was one of a group of men who started searching the Knight property intensively at dawn Wednesday.

Other members of the group were James Brown, Jack Shields, Beatty Davis, Tom Aussenegg, Ted Hall, Duncan Simpson and J. Orr.

Mrs. Knight's hands had been tied with ladies' shoe laces and with the belt of her dress.

reached between Ottawa and Quebec for the transfer in several stages of jurisdiction over Eskimos in northern Quebec.

The transfer gives to Quebec the jurisdiction held by the federal government.

The first step was decided last May 8 at a meeting of Prime Minister Pearson and Premier Lesage. It gives to Quebec the former buildings of the mid-Canada line at Riviere-a-la-Belaine.

Mr. Lesage's statement to the legislature was in reply to a question by Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson who asked confirmation of statements made to a reporter Tuesday night about the transfer of jurisdiction.

Bloodiest July 4th On Record

The Independence weekend in America was the bloodiest July 4th holiday on record and came within four deaths of the record for all summer holidays.

The 507 traffic deaths during the 72 hours not only exceeded the record of 515 set for a July 4th holiday of similar length last year, the total also surpassed the 506 figure of the four-day, 120-hour 1963 Independence weekend.

Pay: Army Up, Political Cut

HAARLEM (UPI) — The government announced Wednesday the South Vietnamese army troops, among the lowest paid soldiers in the world, will get a pay increase.

The pay hike was disclosed in a communique signed by Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, who also is head of the air force.

At the same time Ky announced a 50 per cent pay cut for all leading government officials, including himself.

The Viet Nam army payroll is met by the United States.

Communist troops today opened a mortar barrage against a government district headquarters in Kontum province. The Viet Cong guerrillas have overrun two district capitals in the province in a drive to cut South Viet Nam in half.

The emergency landing of 8,000 U.S. Marines Wednesday at Da Nang and Qui Nhon appeared to be aimed at blocking the Viet Cong drive. (See also Page 2.)

Mounties Zip Lips And Hide Inspector

An RCMP official Wednesday night refused to give any information on the kidnapping of 33-year-old Mary Knight.

Sgt. William Murdoch of Victoria, who is supervising the investigation, was asked for a statement on the progress of the investigation.

"I can't give you any statement," he commented. "Those are my orders."

He was asked where the public was to get its information.

"All statements must come from Insp. McKay (Insp. George McKay, officer commanding, Victoria subdivision)."

Where could Insp. McKay be contacted?

"I wouldn't advise you to bother the inspector," said Sgt. Murdoch.

Victoria RCMP said Insp. McKay was in Ladysmith. Ladysmith RCMP said the inspector was in Victoria.

Shortly after Mrs. Knight was discovered missing, her husband received a call demanding ransom. The call came in at noon Tuesday.

Six hours later Insp. McKay told reporters there was no truth to rumors of a ransom demand.

The investigation continues.

Gunmen Slay Sheikh

ADEN (Reuters)—Three gunmen shot and killed Sheikh Nasser Abdulrahman Al Sadi, Naib ruler of Shaib sheikhdom, here Wednesday night.

Ten rounds from automatic pistols were fired at the Naib while he was leaving his car opposite his residence in Aden's old-town area.

Sheikh Nasser was a member of the South Arabian federal council legislative body.

His tiny sheikhdom bordering the Yemen republic recently joined the South Arabian federation.

About two months ago federal troops launched a military action in his sheikhdom against dissident tribesmen operating from across the border.

No arrests have been reported so far.

BULLETIN

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)—Two ex-convicts, suspected of murder, bank robbery and the kidnapping of a 15-year-old boy and his mother, released four hostages unharmed early this morning outside the city limits.

Suspect Gray

SPRINGFIELD, Ore. (AP)—Scores of police scoured western Oregon Wednesday for two killers who shot down a deputy sheriff and apparently seized a 33-year-old woman and her son as hostages.

An officer said the woman had once testified in court against an ex-convict who is being sought in connection with the case.

The woman, Mrs. David Corbin and her 12-year-old son Clinton were missing from the Corbin home near where deputy sheriff Carlton E. Smith, 33, was murdered.

LOVELY WOMAN

Sheriff Harry Mariow of Lane County said he feared for Mrs. Corbin's life. "These are cold-blooded, vicious men, and she is a lovely looking woman," he said.

Deputy Ron Eggleston said police records showed Mrs. Corbin had testified, but he did not disclose any details.

Two men who got out of prison last week were sought for questioning.

They were Wilbur Marion Gray, 30, sometimes called Wilfred Gray, and Karl Cletus Bowles, 24.

Gray, a native of Brunswick, Ga., served time in New York before his term in the Oregon prison for assault and robbery.

Bowles was a native of Amarillo, Texas, who served time in Colorado before his Oregon sentence for breaking and entering.

Both were released last week after completing their terms.

Police reported this chain of events:

BANK ROBBER

Two men used a shotgun and a pistol to rob a Portland bank of $13,000 Tuesday. Eight hours later a former convict paid $500 cash for a used sports car in Salem, 45 miles south of Portland.

Two hours later the deputy was slain. That was 110 miles south of Portland.

Shortly afterward police discovered Mrs. Corbin, her son,

MARINER FEELS MARS' TUG

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The U.S. spacecraft Mariner 4 began feeling the gravitational pull of Mars at 2 p.m. Wednesday, just a week before it is scheduled to take the first close-up pictures of the mysterious planet.

The tug was noticed in slight changes in speed as the 575-pound spacecraft, now 128,654,720 miles from earth and 1,721,770 miles from Mars, raced toward the climax of its 228-day voyage.

Mars' pull will divert the spacecraft behind the planet and Mariner 4 will begin relaying pictures, recorded on tape during the "fly-by," after it emerges on the far side of Mars.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson has scheduled a press conference for today to make several announcements and state the federal position in the newly-revived Eskimo squabble with Quebec.

Mr. Pearson told a press conference Wednesday he would issue a statement later in the day on the jurisdictional dispute over Eskimo affairs. But his office said Wednesday night he would discuss the issue at today's conference instead.

The three-year-old controversy over Quebec's 2,500 Eskimos, most of whom speak

English and belong to the Anglican Church of Canada, was rekindled by Premier Jean Lesage Tuesday night when he said in Quebec he and Mr. Pearson have agreed on a gradual takeover of Eskimo affairs by the provincial government.

Mr. Pearson denied Wednesday that he had discussed this subject with the Quebec Liberal premier at their May 8 "summit meeting" in Montreal. He said they merely talked about the transfer of an obsolete radar station at Great Whale River to the province from the defence department. Mr. Pearson said he would comment further after reading a full account of Mr. Lesage's statement.

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Jean Lesage said in the legislature Wednesday that an accord in principle has been reached between Ottawa and

Quebec for the transfer in several stages of jurisdiction over Eskimos in northern Quebec.

The transfer gives to Quebec the jurisdiction held by the federal government.

Of Course It Is Abstract

By IMA D. D. UERTHOFF
Few things have stirred up as much condemnation from coast to coast as the murals and sculpture recently installed in the new international airport of Canada and commissioned by the department of transport.

Twenty of Canada's major artists were chosen to do the work, among them Jack Shadbolt of Vancouver whose sketches for the commemorative mural for the Edmonton international airport from the current exhibition at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Based upon the theme of bush pilots, the mural was to express a mood suggestive of the fear-some terrain of dark and malignant ground where the pilot was facing elemental nature.

Shadbolt made many flights in a small plane to familiarize himself with the shift, slope, climb and slide of the land, the serrated edges where it meets the sea, the aerial pattern of lakes, the white forms across the dark ground and the spirit of the northern light.

The objection to this design has been that it is abstract.

Of course it is abstract, an illustrative approach could not express the intangibles of a subject like this or participate in the experience of the pilot.

Wing formation has been used as a concept and as a concept must have structure and meaning. The artist's sketches show the search for clarification, in black and white or the stark contrast of black, white and pure blue with an occasional gleam of gold.

It is so much more interesting to be able to study an artist's sketches than his finished work.

This exhibition contains many demonstrations of the principles of pictorial composition, not deliberately, but in the process of handling the elements.

The outcry has been that there is nothing realistic in any of the murals, but why should there be?

A muralist is primarily a designer who uses symbols to convey his meaning.

Though the Edmonton airport has been open for some time the battle still rages.

Some of the criticism may be justified where there appears to have been little accord between artist and architect due to the lack of experience of some artists in dealing with mural design.

Shadbolt

But it is generally admitted that the Shadbolt mural is the outstanding one for its technical skill, matched by its technical skill.

The abstract pattern of wings, propellers and other details as seen from the sky against the great void and the dramatized use of the up-ended wing-like formation have all been arrived at through intensive research and extensive observation.

Color harmonies created to fit the mood of the sketches, each one making its contribution, fill the gallery walls with the stark black and white of northern winter or the gorgeous blues of a northern fall, making an exhibition of unusual character and interest.

Greatest Show Is Worth?

NEW YORK (UPI) — The American Broadcasting Company and the Madison Square Garden Corporation are negotiating for the purchase of Ringling Bros. Circus, it was learned Wednesday.

The asking price is $30,000,000.

"There have been some preliminary discussions," president Ned Irish of Madison Square Garden, admitted, "but they have not entered the serious stage."

It was understood that the TV and broadcasting concern and the Garden had agreed to pay John Ringling North $5,100,000 for his 51 per cent majority share of the circus but that no agreement had been reached with the minority group, headed by Mrs. Charles Ringling.

The minority group originally asked $2,000,000 for its interest, but increased the price to $4,800,000 after learning of North's asking price.

ABC and the Garden jointly operate other entertainment enterprises. On July 1, 1965, it was announced that MSG-ABC Productions, Inc., jointly owned by the Garden and American Broadcasting - Paramount Theatres, Inc., had acquired 80 per cent interest in the two American and two European companies of Holiday on Ice, an ice revue, in a transaction involving several million dollars.

Union Contracts Signed

New three-year contracts calling for 11-12-cent raises for tapmen and 8-9 cents for waiters have been signed by Victoria beer parlors.

The contracts also include a half day sick leave a month. Union business agent Jan Henneman told Victoria Labor Council Wednesday. Wages for the 150 members of the union were $1.93 an hour for tap men and $1.75 an hour for waiters.

In other business council decisions: To support a move by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers for a labor representative on the board of University of Victoria. To stir up public interest in obtaining a city-operated ambulance service.

There is all sorts of equipment and men to guard the public against property damage but no help available when it came to a human life, said former council member Fred Bevis.

already proved an embarrassment to the Prime Minister.

For it was at that meeting that Mr. Pearson and Mr. Levesque discussed the petition to the Queen by the Province of Quebec asking for a reduction in the power of the Quebec upper house.

For several days Mr. Pearson denied in the Commons that he had promised Premier Levesque that the federal government would approve the address to the Queen (which it subsequently did).

Finally, after persistent opposition questioning he admitted he had told Mr. Levesque that favorable approval would be given if the address was processed in the normal manner.

The controversy swirling around the jurisdiction of the Eskimos has a long and bitter history.

From 1867 until 1939 they were the responsibility of the province. They were a financial burden which Quebec sought, insistently in the 1930s, to shift back to the federal government.

In 1913 the supreme court ruled in favor of Quebec and the federal government assumed the responsibility.

Now Quebec, particularly Renegades Minister Rene Levesque, wants them back although the Eskimos, from what information is available, want to remain under federal jurisdiction.

Federal Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing has maintained that the Eskimos should be given the right of full consultation over their destiny.

Mr. Levesque has maintained they should be consulted, but they should become a matter for provincial responsibility whether they like it or not.

Wise to Consult Specialist

Irritations Upset Balance When Ear Becomes Infected

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: Please write about labyrinthitis. At least one-third of my time I'm so dizzy and nauseated I can't do a thing but lie down with my eyes closed. At times nausea and vomiting grip me so that when it is over even the top of my head is sore.—P.W.B.

One must first make certain that the trouble is labyrinthitis, because other conditions can have similar consequences.

Labyrinthitis is an irritation of the inner structures of the ear—these structures having a good deal to do with your sense of balance. When your balance is thus upset the nausea is a natural result.

INNER EAR

What irritates these inner ear structures? Infection, from bacteria or viruses; or toxic states, as from drugs, certain medications in large quantities, alcohol, tobacco, etc.

Another possibility is Meniere's disease, which likewise involves dizziness, along with ringing in the ears, and deafness as the classic and unusual symptoms.

Meniere's disease, unlike labyrinthitis, is usually due to hemorrhage (bleeding) into the ear canals.

DIZZINESS

Still other possible (but less likely) causes of such violent dizziness can be a tumor of the auditory nerve, or neurological disorder at or beyond that point.

You did not mention how long you have had this trouble, and that information might very well be a valuable clue.

TREATMENT

For labyrinthitis, treatment is aimed at subduing the underlying infection, of course, along with restriction of salt in the diet, and diuretic drugs to eliminate water and reduce congestion in the critical area.

Vertigo pills (medicine to relieve "vertigo" or dizziness) usually help.

Incidentally, ultra-sound therapy is used now for severe and protracted Meniere's disease.

To be more specific, if you have not seen an ear specialist, I suggest that you do so.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am interested in learning more about douching—MRS. A. J.

Douching is useful only if there is some purpose in applying heat or medication to that area. If you have any health problems, tell me what it is and I'll try to explain it and the treatment which applies to it.

Despite a considerable amount of folklore, the normal female doesn't need douching. There is no health aspect involved. The douche is useful medically for quite a lot of purposes, but is neither necessary nor helpful (and could at times even be harmful) for a healthy woman.

U.S. Paper Tiger No Joke in China

VANCOUVER (CP) — The United States "paper tiger" is no laughing matter in Communist China, an American political science professor said here.

Dr. H. Arthur Steiner, Asian affairs specialist with the University of California at Los Angeles, said the Chinese are sure the U.S. paper tiger will crumble—but only in the long run.

"They say it is a tiger that has awfully strong teeth, and they respect the teeth," said Dr. Steiner.

"You may pooh-pooh it if you wish—and many people in my country pooh-pooh it—but I remember that my nation is the only one to twice use the atom bomb in anger.

"Just see the way this looks to 700,000,000 Chinese.

"Among them you won't find any Canadian or American sympathizers."

Dr. Steiner was addressing the first session of the University of British Columbia summer school on public affairs. His lecture, on the Process of Revolution in Modern China, introduced a three-day seminar on the Asian country.

and the family automobile, had disappeared from the nearby Corbin home.

The Corbin car was found abandoned Wednesday in the Cascade range, 125 miles northeast of Springfield. There was no trace of the woman or boy.

There was no immediate report on whether any car had been stolen at Marion Forks.

"Oh my God, I'm shot," Deputy Smith said into his patrol car microphone Tuesday night shortly after he reported he had stopped the car. He earlier had given the license number over radio.

Ironically, Smith was on his first night patrol as a deputy and was only 45 minutes from the end of his shift. Police said he was killed by six pistol bullets and a shotgun blast as he sat in the front seat.

Police converged on the area. They found the car abandoned. Less than two blocks away lights blazed in the Corbin home, but Mrs. Corbin and her son were missing.

Four other children slept. Awakened, they said they did not know what had happened to their mother and the boy.

Marines May Force Viet-Nam Showdown

SAIGON (AP) — Fresh U.S. marines streamed ashore Wednesday in an 8,000-man buildup that may lead to a showdown with Communist forces on a rampage in South Viet Nam's central highlands. Intelligence men said they believe North Viet Nam's 325th Division is involved.

The marine reinforcements seemed to have been brought in on an emergency basis. A U.S. spokesman announced 2,800 marines put in from navy ships at Da Nang and Qui Nhon and the rest of a 3,400-man party will debark today. He said 4,800 others will come ashore in the next week, boosting American military strength in South Viet Nam to nearly 60,000 men.

The hurried landings, he said, do not involve any of the six marine battalions earmarked earlier by U.S. Defence Secretary McNamara to come to South Viet Nam.

It is in the mountains that intelligence sources said they believe the regulars of North Viet Nam's 325th Division are operating. They said one battalion of that division is known to have infiltrated several months ago.

Tidal Wave Detectors Pacific Wide

Warnings from Hawaii

HONOLULU (AP)—The centre of the United States seismic sea wave warning system is Hawaii, where tidal waves are known and feared.

It was a giant wave in 1946 that raced from the Aleutian Islands to Chile, leaving a destructive path. Another from the opposite direction killed 61 persons and caused $27,000,000 damage in Hawaii in 1950.

Scientists Met
Scientists from the United States, Russia, Japan and 21 other Pacific nations exchanged ideas at a conference held here last April. They were seeking ways to improve the advance warning system by integrating the U.S. network with systems operated by Japan and the Soviet Union.

Tidal waves—or seismic sea waves, as they are more correctly called—are mostly generated by earthquakes beneath the ocean floor, or by gigantic landslides of ocean-bottom sediments.

A wave at sea is hardly bigger than any of its companion swells. But its force is such that it pulls toward it the water retreating from a land mass, then carries it forward again at high speed, building in height as it goes.

Warning Program
Over the past 20 years, the U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey has developed a warning program so people living in coastal areas likely to be affected can be put on guard.

The survey's Honolulu observatory has operational control of the Pacific system. Japan and Russia operate similar systems on their own.

The warning systems rely mainly on quick reports of earthquakes, their magnitude and location, with information from tide stations telling whether swells are generated.

Pacific Stations
The Pacific warning system relies on 15 seismograph stations: Honolulu; Santiago, Chile; Lima, Peru; Victoria, B.C.; Guam, Tokyo, Hong Kong, Berkeley and Pasadena, Calif.; Tucson, Ariz.; Sitka and Fairbanks, Alaska; Papeete, Tahiti; Asia, Western Samoa, and Manila, the Philippines.

It takes several seismograph stations to pinpoint an earthquake's epicentre. Honolulu's can determine distance but reports are needed from other stations to determine the precise location.

Wave Alerts
After determining the magnitude of the earthquake and its epicentre, the observatory asks tide stations for changes in ocean levels. There are 30 such stations in the network, but only stations that would be affected by a wave are alerted.

For example, if an earthquake is in the Aleutians, reports are sought from Adak, Attu and Dutch Harbor, all in the Aleutian chain, or Sitka and from Midway Island, 1,150 miles northwest of Honolulu.

Travel Fast
The size of a wave at Midway is usually indicative of the size that can be expected in Hawaii 15 to 30 minutes later.

One of the Honolulu observatory's main problems is the precious time it takes to locate an earthquake and establish its magnitude.

Waves travel more than 400 miles an hour. It takes 4½ hours for a wave to reach Hawaii from the Aleutians, 15 hours from Chile.

Hawaii scientists generally worry only about quakes which measure above 7 on the Richter scale.

Mr. Favreau's Reward

THAT PRIME MINISTER Pearson has seen fit to appoint Mr. Guy Favreau president of the Privy Council is a horrifying indication of the distance by which the present government has separated itself from any degree of political morality.

That an individual who has been found negligent in his duty to the nation while serving as a minister of the Crown should be so rewarded is an unforgivable insult to the people of Canada.

For no matter what interpretation may be placed upon the findings of the Dorion judicial inquiry nor what changes have been embodied after the Chief Justice's report was tabled in the House, Mr. Favreau still stands culpable of misconduct in high office.

It should not be forgotten by the people of Canada that it was Mr. Favreau's failure to properly conduct the affairs of the federal department of justice that necessitated the appointment of the Dorion judicial inquiry.

It should also be remembered that Mr. Favreau stubbornly refused to authorize his department to continue its investigation into allegations of bribery directed at certain ministerial aides long before the appointment of the judicial inquiry and violently denied that there was any truth in the charges—even to the extent of calling Conservative MP Erik Nielsen a liar when the Yukon member reported in the House that two of the offenders in the case were assistants to ministers.

(At the insistence of the deputy speaker the then justice minister later modified his remark to say that Mr. Nielsen's statement was untrue.)

Nor should it be forgotten that one of the terms of reference of the judicial inquiry was whether "there is sufficient evidence to warrant any prosecution for offences that may be involved" or, in simpler words, whether the minister of justice and his department had been carrying out their high obligations to the citizens of Canada.

In his findings related to this instruction, Mr. Justice Dorion discovered that Mr. Favreau had indeed failed. He also found (despite Mr. Favreau's insistence that no ministerial assistants were involved) that four—not two—such appointees were implicated in the case: one for having offered a $20,000 bribe to "obstruct the course of justice," two whose conduct was found "reprehensible," and one whose behavior in the matter was "imprudent."

Nor should it be overlooked that it is Mr. Favreau who must bear the heaviest burden of blame in that he was head of the justice department and as such personally responsible to the House for its conduct at the time the offences were committed and had, by his own admission, knowledge of a great deal of what was going on.

If a naval captain had shown such dereliction in his duty as has Mr. Favreau he would have been relieved of his command and perhaps lost his commission. Had a business executive displayed such misjudgment as the former minister of justice, he would have been fired.

But Mr. Favreau gets nothing but praises and prizes.

Premier's Ferry Tale

PREMIER BENNETT is very far off the mark if he believes his statement about ferry fares will cut any ice among regular users of the service between Vancouver Island and the mainland.

Mr. Bennett says that the government's subsidy—$909,000 last year—may have to be increased to enable the service to keep rates at their present level, and at the same time, no fare reduction is possible.

The point which will immediately arise to query this way of thinking is whether the subsidy of $909,000 is indeed excessive, or even adequate, in light of other largesse spread by the B.C. government to its mainland and interior communities.

Mr. Bennett found it politically expedient to cut off the government revenue from the mainland and bridges, ferries and tunnels, even although the change cost the government (or rather the taxpayers of the whole province) a huge sum of $66,523,000.

Not only are these bridges and tunnels no longer a source of revenue but they also take government money to maintain and operate, just as the ferries do. Yet in the case of the ferries Mr. Bennett apparently feels that the entire cost including capital redemption should be borne by the taxpayers.

There are hundreds of Vancouver Island users of the ferries who are solidly behind this paper's drive for a lower scale of charges.

By phone and letter they have pointed out that the latest figures on B.C. Ferry operations show that there was a net operating income of $2,734,155 for the year on the ships, not counting the $909,000 government subsidy.

This money was used to amortize the government expenditures on government ferries and to write them off.

Mr. Bennett has no similar form of revenue to write off the bridges and tunnels. He is discriminating.

Vancouver Island is entitled to the freeway system just as much as the mainlanders are, and the assumption that $5 a car and $2 a passenger is a "low rate" as Mr. Bennett claims is not an argument. For those who have to use ferries frequently on business or pleasure, it certainly does not come into that category. Not everyone enjoys the salary level of cabinet ministers, or even common-or-garden MLAs. Mr. Bennett should turn his thoughts to those who make only average wages, for they are the mainstay of the ferry trade.

Icing and Sawdust

MR. F. J. BIGG (Athabasca): . . . If the Minister is as innocent as he says he is, it is our plain duty to shake him, wake him up and tell him what is in this package deal he is asking us to pass. This resolution reminds me of one of those lead cakes I was speaking about a few days ago, those lead cakes which are full of bitter sawdust. I would not be surprised to find, in view of the Minister's record, that he really is innocent and naive. He offers us these cakes and he does not even know the icing is thin and the sawdust unpalatable. On other occasions when he has been told about this he has withdrawn, and put a few raisins in there. I beg him to take another look at this resolution and see whether he can take these sour nuts out of the cake and give us those parts which are acceptable to the economy.

A Leader on the Loose

HEARD "The Speech" yet, the "Living, Growing, Ever-Expanding Speech?" That's the one Conservative Leader Diefenbaker has been unwinding around the country—through Ontario, on east coast and west, and across the prairies.

If you haven't, then get set. For you're going to, unless you leave the country on a vacation across the border, to the West Indies or better still (if you're a Liberal) even further away, to Europe, say.

Be warned, here and now, that Dief plans spending much of Parliament's summer vacation spreading the Tory tidings across the land.

And be alerted, too, for Dief's just about the best entertainment turn since Barnum and Bailey hid his eighting extravaganza.

It's his idea of a fun vacation, stumping platform-to-platform as he Mainstreets his way around the country, shaking hands and downing countless cups of coffee from church hall to civic auditorium, to hotel ballroom, to political picnic, to monster barbecue, to roller rink and back in the fall to Parliament.

Now, "The Speech."

This isn't just any old one-shot speech.

Not the kind most politicians use for the majority of speaking dates.

It's a rare bird kind of a speech.

Who needs one?

Not Dief: not often, anyway.

This, "The Speech," is a living sort of thing.

It's an entertaining series of variations on a basic political theme.

Somebody's maybe going to score it, you know, like Rashidman's variations on Fagelman's theme.

Most other party leaders and second level satellites usually crank out what they fondly regard as a new speech for each platform appearance.

Only Dief has mastered the labor-saving technique of "The Speech," built with conveniently interchangeable parts.

The components for this "Do-It-Yourself-On-The-Spot-of-the-Moment Speech" are little white cards.

A stack of them, each with a contemporary political issue soup-bone-bolled down to a couple of terse words.

Dief shuffles them like a pack of cards. Tries out one for reaction, and if it doesn't score with the audience, tries another, and another until he gets a play-back from the crowd.

Initially he assembled "The Speech" like a car, so new components can be inserted to meet changing political circumstances and audience mood.

New statistics can be run in meanings shaded and emphasized to meet developing situations . . . old jobs reshaped and new yarns trotted out . . . in fact, the whole thing updated and refocused there on the spot to the ever-moving perspective of issues.

This makes it difficult if not sometimes even impossible for the government to answer.

And that, exactly, makes "The Speech" the political weapon it is . . . a sort of ambush, or a hidden bed of rhetorical quicksand into which the hapless cabinet minister can sink over his head, if charging in recklessly without first thoroughly scouting the lie of the verbal land.

Scotting doesn't come easily, either, with Dief never bothering to produce a text that can be quoted clear and hard.

So when the government wants to return the fire, it often discovers that the range trajectory, salience of the ammo, and sometimes even the target have changed.

Basically, "The Speech" has six master parts:

1. The government record: pphhhew! Promises made and unkept. Bureaucracy rampant. Ottawa becomes the provincial premiers' doormat. Hunky panky in high places.

2. The government future: you think the past was bad? More arrogance. More bowing and scraping to the provinces—and you know which one. Eventual republicanism.

3. The opposition aims and ambitions: quick return to power and the old loyalties, the true values. With a cleaning and fumigating of the government stable.

4. Personalities: the quick gulp, good for laughs about "Miles" and "Pick 'n' Paul" and, of course, Lucien Rivard.

5. International: left open for inclusion of the latest diplomatic dispatches from Washington, London, Rome, Moscow, New Delhi and other Faraway Places, underlining a continuing interest in the vital art of statesmanship.

6. The joke: for the opener to warm them up fast and when closing to always leave 'em laughing.

Dangerous Road

DURING the last great war, and for some time thereafter, the Canadian government from "wages and prices." Rationing was also brought into effect to prevent selfish and greedy from hoarding.

If my memory does not fail me the necessities of life—such as bread, butter, meat, milk, fruit, vegetables, etc., were, in many cases, from 100 to 300 per cent cheaper than they are today. Wages of the working man were correspondingly lower.

Since the end of the war the inordinate demands of "labor" have sent wages sky-high and prices have followed suit. Selfishness and greed are rampant in all walks of life. Professional men and women, including doctors and nurses, are not above threatening to strike and even members of Parliament follow the lowly working man's example.

Inflation is growing apace, "consumer debt" is growing by leaps and bounds and, unless curbed, will eventually bring on a situation like unto the collapse that took place towards the end of 1929, which plunged the Western World into one of the worst depressions in modern times.

What could be done 25 or 30 years ago can, unquestionably, be done today if the government has the courage and will to prohibit strikes and freeze wages and prices—we sorely need a "party" who will pledge itself to put country before party, if elected to power. The "Grits" will never do it, and the splinter groups not only want the power, they will cling to the unjustifiable indemnity as long as they can.

Canada, with her vast natural resources, could, without stress, reduce the cost of many of her products—especially in the mineral field, and recoup what she gave away, in lowering the prices, through the greatly increased quantities of commodities produced and sold to foreign countries. Finally, it is about time Canada fired L. B. Pearson, as prime minister, for we have no room for dictators.

The Pioneers

In reference to Mr. James K. Nesbitt's article in this week's Colonist, re "Who would be the Canadian Centennial pioneers in 1997," he said those that were living in Canada in 1897 or before would be eligible.

I think the descendants of the United Empire Loyalists should be shown first preference. There are a goodly number living in Canada, including Vancouver Island and the Mainland, and I think they should be recognized in some way or other in our Centennial year.

Up in Arms

"The noisy mother and father crowds had been shot by an annoyed teenager . . ." relates The Daily Colonist, June 27, 1965, in a story of the rescue of baby crows from a nest.

A question regarding the killing of the parent crows by the above-mentioned "annoyed teenager" comes to mind. Is not authorization from the proper authorities required for an adult only to possess a gun? Yet a teen-ager easily upset by the noise of crows possessed a gun. Undoubtedly the crow has a place in the scheme of things and therefore should not be harmed.

Men in Viet Nam are dying on both sides. One could moralize over it but death and injury are not for moralizing. No, they

Britain Lights the Way

By W. P. KIRKMAN
from London

JUST 25 years ago, in the blackest year of the Second World War, Britain's Parliament, at Westminster, passed the first Colonial Development and Welfare Act. At a time when the future of Britain herself was at stake, the government, in presenting the act to the House of Commons, was laying the foundations for the future development of the colonies, most of which, 25 years later, are fully independent states.

Under the 1940 act, $5,000,000 a year was provided for economic development in the colonies and $500,000 a year for research. In 1945, and again in 1949, 1950, 1955 and 1959, the total amounts were raised. A further development in 1959 was the introduction of a new system of aid, exchequer loans, designed to enable territories to borrow from the British government when they were unable to borrow on the ordinary money market. Between 1959 and 1964 $100,000,000 was made available under the scheme.

In 1963 the life of the 1959 act (which had consolidated its predecessors) was extended to March 31, 1966. To bring the picture up to date, the Overseas Development and Service Bill which has been passing through Parliament this year, extends the Colonial Development and Welfare Act to March 31, 1970, and increases once more the amount of grants and loans that may be made under it to the still dependent territories.

Some idea of the scope of Colonial Development and Welfare over the quarter-century can be gained from the fact that between 1946 and 1964 the British treasury provided in round figures $315,000,000 under these acts.

Quite apart from its timing, the first Development and Welfare Act was remarkable because it marked a fundamental change in the British government's attitude to colonial economic development. Between the wars, money had been provided, but largely on an ad hoc basis.

The aim of the CD and W Act was to provide the necessary nucleus of money for long-term economic planning so that territories could look forward to a future, not of perpetual economic dependence on Britain, but of self-sufficiency. Colonies were to be given the means to "take off" economically, as well as to progress politically.

When the new policy for aid was being discussed and explained there were references, which seem quaint today, to "the government's policy on the broad questions of development and welfare in the colonial empire." The object, on the other hand, far from sounding quaint, could be repeated today without clashing with modern ideas. The financial assistance promised was to be "for any purpose likely to promote the development of the resources of any colony or the welfare of its people."

At first, money was provided under a system which meant that any balance of the promised amount which remained unspent at the end of the financial year was forfeited. As soon as the war ended, in 1945, this was changed. In the 1945 act, not only was the total amount raised (from $5,000,000 a year to £120,000,000 over a two-year period,) but it was made possible for a territory to draw sums at any time in the period (subject to an annual total limit). This was an important and logical change, since it meant that genuine long-term planning could take place.

In 1945, when the first early stirrings of the desire for independence could already be felt, a despatch from the colonial secretary to the various colonial governments reminded them that "in the preparation of plans . . . it is of the first importance that the interests of the inhabitants . . . should be aroused and their opinions consulted . . ."

The variety of schemes financed, wholly or in part, by CD and W funds is enormous. In some territories—the Leeward and Windward Islands and British Honduras, for example—they have been the source of almost all the available development money.

Regional research centres, surveys, agricultural developments, educational projects, all have been financed in this way. One of the best-known schemes was the Swynnerton Plan, in Kenya, a project for the development of African agriculture. Between 1955 and 1960, $5,000,000 was spent on it, and it is no exaggeration to say that the plan was the basis from which grew later development, the groundwork of Kenya's economy as an independent country.

Another major scheme, costing $3,000,000 between 1943 and 1960, was a drainage and irrigation system in British Guiana. A similar project, costing just under $1,000,000 between 1955 and 1960, was organized in Tanganyika.

In 1959-1960, the first year of exchequer loans, one loan of $4,000,000 was made to help the Uganda Electricity Board in its development scheme based on the Owen Falls dam.

In Malta, one of the largest recipients of British money, the biggest single project was the improvement of the dockyard facilities by the construction of a deep-water wharf, and other changes to assist the transformation from a naval to a civil dockyard. In 1963-64 Malta received for this purpose a loan of $1,200,000 as a supplementary provision.

Perhaps the most dramatic contribution has been made in the educational field. Some large and small have been found all over the world for primary, secondary and higher education. The best measure of the developments that have been helped forward is the increase in the number of universities. When the world war ended there were two universities in the then colonial dependencies— in Malta and Hong Kong. Now there are five in Nigeria alone. Much of the growth in East, West and Central Africa and in the West Indies has been financed by development and welfare money.

Aid "for any purpose likely to promote development" was the stated object when this assistance began, and the funds have, in fact, been used to meet local needs rather than to fit preconceived notions of planning.

Now, with new colonies left, Britain's aid to the developing countries is all channelled through the ministry of overseas development. The development fund is now a much smaller part of the total; but that, reflecting the graduation of so many territories from colonial dependence to full sovereign status, is the measure of its success.

New Comic Strip Nazi Propaganda?

From The London Sunday Times

The heroes of a new West German comic strip are a couple of ancient Teutons called Siggi and Babarras. Their mission: To rescue from the hands of "foreign occupiers" a certain Werner von Braunfels who, once free, will forge a golden sickle for Bonn.

On the surface, an innocuous enough story, but beneath the bland narrative lies a sinister streak. The strip, say German critics, is Neo-Nazi propaganda. Siggi's adventures appear weekly in Lupo, a magazine that first turned up on West German newstands last April. It now has a circulation of 250,000 and is reckoned to be read by about 1,000,000 children between the ages of 12 and 16.

According to its critics, it tells a story that needs little translation: the foreign occupiers speak French and English; von Braunfels is the hardly disguised rocket expert Werner von Braun; and the golden sickle, they claim, is the atom bomb.

One West German magazine claims that even Lupo's title is significant. It can be taken, they say, as a veiled Latin reference to Hitler's werewolves. Whatever the source, the strip ranges through a series of the most characteristic Nazi myths without, it seems, the Bonn government being too bothered.

The two Teutons, for instance, carry as a talisman a chunk of Nordic glacial rock "as other people drag a guilt complex around with them."

"Guilt complex" is a current term employed by Neo-Nazis as a snide reference to those Germans who feel badly about Auschwitz. And the country in which "von Braunfels" is held captive is none other than "NATOla."

On their way to NATOla, the Teutons are set upon by a gang of bad men, natives from "Development Aid or Your Life."

The neo-nazis complain that West Germany is being bled white by the underdeveloped nations. Siggi and Babarras knock them out. And as they stride away, they deliver what once seemed to be a classic German text: "That is the way to treat bandits—now they respect and honor us."

The strip also includes an anti-semitic angle which no German can overlook. An evil nightclub, where the heroes seek "von Braunfels," is owned by a cringing dolt "Heir Profitteer" who speaks German with a thick East European Jewish accent. The Teuton couple demolish the club.

Vietnamese Can't Stem Red Tide

By ARTHUR J. DOMMEN, from Kontum, South Viet Nam

Substantial numbers of American troops will have to be stationed in the interior highlands of South Viet Nam before the end of the present summer monsoon if the Communists are to be prevented from taking over the capitals of one or more of the provinces there.

I believe this gloomy conclusion is fully supported by the facts. I may even be too optimistic in saying the Communists, with their strength sharply built up in this region, can be kept up in the mountains away from the towns.

The handful of American military advisers here are of the opinion that the Viet Cong have not yet begun to exercise the destructive potential which their manpower gives them.

It is clearly beyond the present resources of the South Vietnamese armed forces to meet the threat posed by the rapid buildup of opposing forces that has taken place since February.

Basically, the issue is one of manpower. Escalation in the size and armament of Viet Cong units means that the government must lie down troops at its disposal to hold district towns.

With or without air support, none of these district garrisons stands much chance of holding off a regiment of hostile troops or holding the initiative of attack.

Disparity in manpower in tactical situations has become so great that even mountain tribesmen who are native inhabitants of this huge region are helpless in facing the Viet Cong.

Even with accurate intelligence of Viet Cong main force units hiding out in their forests, the tribesmen are too few to do much more than harass them by ambushing small detachments moving from one area to another. The idea that the tribesmen are able to seal off the border against infiltration is obsolete.

Three North Vietnamese regiments now are roaming at will in the provinces of Kontum, Pleiku and Phu Binh. They back up the effort furnished by three Viet Cong main force regiments, one "independent" Viet Cong main force battalion per province and approximately one Viet Cong 30-man company in each district of each province. There is also a Viet Cong main force "corridor battalion" moving back and forth across the Laos border west of here.

The North Vietnamese troops (called PAVN for People's Army of Vietnam) are veterans who received their baptism of fire attacking bunkers in the teeth of French machine gun fire and napalm, many of them as teenagers.

An "independent" battalion is one that operates on its own with portable armament. It is familiar with all the valleys and ridges of its province. These soldiers can set up mortars and lob a few rounds into a government-held district town to demoralize the garrison while main force regiments plan bigger things in their secret jungle bases. There are known to be nine such jungle bases.

Co-ordination of all these various elements is handled by a headquarters in Upper Quang Ngai province. It is known as the Fifth Interzone Headquarters.

To oppose this formidable array of hostile forces in the special tactical zone, the government has committed four of its nine strategic reserve battalions. These battalions serve as the backbone of the defence effort furnished by the South Vietnamese regular troops in regimental strength scattered in the zone's important towns.

In lesser outposts are the regional forces under provincial command and the locally recruited militia known as the People's Forces.

Strategic reserve units were once kept in the Saigon area and used only for breaking critical situations without losing any of their mobility. These battalions have now been obliged to surrender much of their flexibility through static defence duties.

The South Vietnamese government therefore requires a substantial manpower increment if it is to meet the threat in the highlands.

This manpower, to be effective, must not be tied down to static defence but must be free to engage in offensive operations. Only then can they become a serious and continuing problem for the hitherto unchallenged enemy in their jungle lairs.

It doesn't matter whether these units actually in the jungle are Vietnamese or American. Both are strangers there. But whoever they are, they will have to be good soldiers.

$86,000,000 A Year Collected

Viet Cong Levy Taxes

From Saigon

The communist Viet Cong "shadow government" is now collecting the equivalent of $86,000,000 annually in tribute taxes from South Viet Nam.

The levies, both in currency and in kind, are collected from private vehicles at roadblocks set up by tax "specialists" attached to the Viet Cong administration who keep tabs on villages down to individual peasant families.

A considerable part of the $86,000,000 comes from "donations" made by Saigon businessmen as insurance against Viet Cong bomb terrorism.

A typical tax imposed on a truck travelling from a market town 25 miles outside Saigon to the capital is 500 piastres, equivalent to about $6.60 at the current rate of exchange.

By far the major portion of the Viet Cong's tax "take" comes from the Mekong delta, South Viet Nam's lush rice basket.

Here the usual procedure, even in areas the government does not admit are under Viet Cong control, is to levy a tax on rice in the field according to acreage and estimated yield. A second tax is imposed when the rice is sent to be milled, and a third tax is collected when it goes to market.

The money collected by the Viet Cong is used for the purchase of medicines and other scarce supplies which are obtainable only in Saigon. Taxes in kind are used to feed Viet Cong troops, or are cached as reserves in case a main force unit moves into the area.

North Viet Nam is the No. 1 importer of rice appropriated by the Viet Cong in the south.

What A Way to Run A Railroad!

Trains Lose Million a Day

By JACK BRANNAN, from Buenos Aires

Argentina's state-owned railroads, operating at a loss of $1,000,000 daily, have increased passenger and freight rates for the third time in less than three years.

But as with past increases, the extra revenue generated by the higher rates will do little, if anything, to offset the steadily increasing railroad deficit.

Railroad administrators have admitted the rate increases will merely enable the government to cover a 42 per cent wage increase granted last February to the nation's 220,000 railroad workers.

The administrators predicted that even with the higher rates, the railroads will lose 60,000,000 pesos ($397,000,000) this year—an increase of 33 per cent over the operating loss of 45,000,000 pesos ($298,000,000) recorded last year.

By comparison, the anticipated railroad loss for the year is more than half Argentina's $693,000,000 foreign debt due in 1965.

Until 1947, when they were grabbed from the British by dictator Juan Peron, the Argentine railroads were a profit-making system. The British firms organized to operate them paid regular dividends of as much as seven per cent to holders of common stock.

Within a few years after nationalization, however, the railroads began to show losses that have been increasing steadily ever since.

Speakers' Corner Lifts Lid Off Racial Bias

University of Victoria undergraduate Robin Jeffrey is on an extended tour of Europe.

By ROBIN JEFFREY, from London

Within the shadow of the Marble Arch, a magnificent lump of uselessness originally intended as a gate to Buckingham Palace but which proved too narrow to accommodate the state coach, lies Hyde Park's speakers' corner, one of the places where the visitor can get a different, perhaps closer, view of Britain's racial problem.

Although there are thousands of colored people living in London, to the tourist there seems to be no indication of racial dissatisfaction. On the subway, in buses, on the streets—colored and white people mingle with apparently no problems.

But at speakers' corner, the newspaper stories of flaming crosses, Ku Klux Klan meetings and action societies seem less remote.

Many of the speakers and a large part of the audience are colored, and some recall with pride—and perhaps a touch of ambition—that Ho Chi Minh, Kenyatta, Nehru and Gandhi spoke at Hyde Park.

Recently I heard a member of the Racial Adjustment Action Society, an extremist group which advocates the banding together of colored people in Britain to retaliate against possible violence. He was a handsome, well-dressed, young man and on this particular evening was not as militant as I have since discovered he can be.

Color Is A Label

"It's the same 'ere. A bloke's color is a label. If a colored bloke bumps yer, yer say, 'These black so-and-sos,' but yer don't say, 'These white so-and-sos' when an Englishman does yer a bad turn."

Since many colored people are working at jobs equated with low social position (e.g. subway porters, garbage collectors, laborers), the African student expressed a fear, which I have heard quite often, that this could lead to a caste-like system in which colored people would be associated with manual, low-intelligence labor.

He also pointed to the difficulty encountered by colored students in finding friends and accommodation.

Recently this was brought home to me again by entries in an essay contest sponsored by the Institute for Racial Relations. Open to colored students, the topic was: how their attitudes to the color problem had been changed by study in Britain.

Although white women with colored men (and, though less often, the reverse) are by no means an unusual sight in Hyde Park on a Sunday afternoon, the students wrote of the difficulty of finding friends who did not treat them as a sort of "curiosity," or with a certain condescension.

Others recounted their experiences of room-hunting. They would answer an advertisement by telephone, be told there was a vacancy, and then on appearing to take the room, be informed that it had just been rented.

Nice But Bitter

I have also spoken to very nice, elderly English ladies and upper-middle class businessmen who speak with bitterness about the way in which colored people, they say, have ruined houses and brought down housing standards in whole districts.

Of course, there are many encouraging signs of understanding. One Sunday two weeks ago I saw an Indian couple with their two children and their children's two white friends on their way to an outing at the seaside.

In Edinburgh, I saw a class of 10-year-olds, which included a number of colored boys, from one of Scotland's oldest schools making a noisy and carefree inspection of the Castle.

Congo Post To Be Filled

LEOPOLDVILLE. The Congo (UPI) — Congolese President Joseph Kasavubu may soon fill the power vacuum left by the dismissal of interior minister Godefroid Munongo. Informed sources said Wednesday.

Munongo, a longtime colleague of Premier Moise Tshombe, was released from his duties yesterday after being elected provincial governor of Katanga Orientale in Elizabethville.

Twice, on morning expeditions on the subway, I have seen two distinguished-looking friends, one Indian, one English, sharing the same copy of The Times and getting off at the same station.

All over Britain colored and white people are living peacefully together. It is the "incidents," of course, which are discussed.

With the arresting of the influx of unskilled labor some 18 months ago and with new attempts to slow Commonwealth immigration to Britain, the racial situation may have a chance to stabilize itself.

My Socialist friend said, "If we can get along 'ere without bashing each other's heads in, we may be able to get on together all over the world."

Perhaps the colored influx of the 1950s and 1960s will be assimilated into British society (for the majority of the colored people seem to have come to live permanently) as were the smaller movements of the Jews in the 18th century and the Poles during the Second World War.

But if the millennium were to come tomorrow, I think there would be some reluctance on both sides when the white lion prepared to lie down with the black lamb.

Clyde Beatty Fights Cancer

VENTURA, Calif. (UPI) — Clyde Beatty, who survived countless close calls as one of the world's most famous wild animal trainers, is battling for his life against cancer.

The 62-year-old Beatty, who ran away from home at the age of 15 to join the circus, was in "poor" condition Wednesday at Memorial Community hospital. He was in critical condition when admitted to the hospital Tuesday night, according to his wife, Jane.

The hospital listed his illness as pulmonary embolism. However, Mrs. Beatty said her husband was suffering from cancer.

FATAL ENEMY
"He is fighting against a fatal enemy," she said, "with a courage he showed throughout his life."

Beatty, a resident of this coastal city 80 miles north of Los Angeles, had to undergo stomach surgery a year ago. He resumed his animal training act in April at Long Island, N.Y., but suffered a hemorrhage and returned to his home here.

A native of Bainbridge, Ohio, Beatty decided he wanted to be a trainer and ran away from home at the age of 15 to join Howe's Great London Circus. He received $5 a week for menial tasks that included cleaning cages, but a year later broke in his first wild animal act with the Gollmer Circus.

DARING SHOWMANSHIP
In another few years, Beatty's daring and showmanship earned him an international reputation. He starred with the Ringling Bros. Circus before his own identity was added to the marquee in the Clyde Beatty Cole Brothers Circus in 1935.

In 1944, the former cage boy became owner of his own 3-ring circus. He made several movies starting in 1933 with "The Big Cage." He married former Jane Abel in 1960 and the couple has one son, Clyde Jr.

Hail Pounding

MEDICINE HAT (CP)—Hail stones as large as baseballs pounded the Medicine Hat area Wednesday, smashing greenhouses, ruining crops and causing an estimated $10,000 damage to 17 vacation trailers. The storm cut a swath seven miles wide and about 15 miles deep.

Pickers Needed For Berry Crop

The berry-picking "withover" is under way.

While crews are now occupied stripping the last of the strawberries from the fields, the picking of loganberries has begun and is expected to reach a peak in a week or 10 days' time.

The demand for berry pickers will remain "very high," according to George Bevis, Victoria manager of the National Employment Service.

More pickers than usual will be needed because the present spell of hot, dry weather is expected to concentrate picking into a shorter period, he said.

Cost Runs High

Salvage Plan Sought For Big Expo Tower

MONTREAL (CP) — Mayor Jean Drapeau announced cancellation Wednesday of a plan to build a 1,066-foot tower on the site of Expo 67.

Within hours of the announcement, Andrew Kniewasser, general manager of Expo 67, said he will seek to salvage the plan.

Mr. Drapeau, in a statement issued from city hall, said it appears to be impossible to limit the cost of building the tower to $20,000,000, originally estimated as the outside figure.

The over-all cost could come to about $25,000,000.

Mr. Kniewasser, commenting on the mayor's statement, said he will ask Mr. Drapeau for an appointment so that they can "explore other possibilities, other ways of achieving this monument or a similar thing."

The tower was to have been a joint project of the cities of Montreal and Paris, with each paying half of the cost. The intention was that it should be 325 metres (1,066 feet) high. Completion by 1967 would come on the 325th anniversary of the founding of Montreal.

Abduction Scene At Ladysmith

Mary Knight, 82, was alone in large, secluded beachfront home above at Ladysmith shortly before she was abducted Tuesday. Ransom was demanded from her husband at noon, soon after he returned home and found his semi-invalid wife missing. Mrs. Knight's grandchildren play, right, on family's private beach, happily unaware of tense scene 100 yards away where searchers discovered 82-year-old woman in shed. She had been abducted shortly before noon Tuesday, and was discovered bound, lying under a pile of rubble, at 8:35 a.m. Wednesday.

a beautiful former cover girl, who was regarded by many the female counterpart of playboy Portfiro Rubirosa, killed herself with a "massive overdose" of sleeping pills, police said Wednesday.

Miss Dyer, 35, had risen meteorically to become the toast of the international set and wife of two of the world's most eligible millionaires. Police said she locked her bedroom door Friday night, and her body was discovered Saturday morning by her Portuguese manservant, who broke into the bedroom of her suburban Garches apartment.

NERVOUS DEPRESSION

Next to the body was a half-empty bottle of barbiturates. Police ruled her death a suicide. A medical report stated she had been suffering from nervous depression.

Like Rubirosa, the former Dominican diplomat who was killed in a car crash in Paris Monday, she had married into money.

Her first husband was German-born Swiss industrialist Baron Heinrich von Thyssen, one of Europe's richest men. They were divorced after 10 months. She later married Sudraddin Khan, second son of the Promoter Kenneth Gravenor is organizing a series of displays for the McPherson Playhouse foyer and lobby, in conjunction with the Festival Theatre Society's Show Parade 1965.

He opens his series of displays Aug. 14, with The Changing Face of Victoria.

This will be a contest for local amateur and professional photographers, and will feature pictures of old and new buildings around Victoria.

For the third week, Mr. Gravenor will present a display of art through the centuries. The display will include prints of Cro-Magnon cave paintings, old masters and modern artists. The prints will be provided by Munro's Book Store.

A bathing beauty, as yet unchosen, will pose for anyone with a camera at Centennial Fountain Aug. 21.

"I did the same thing at Miami Beach," Mr. Gravenor said.

"It was a publicity gimmick for the movie, Around the Bramble Bush. I had star Angie Dickinson pose and thousands of photographers showed up."

"Not in Over Their Depths"

The larger finance companies which do not rely to any great degree on short term borrowings have been little affected by the sequel to the Atlantic Acceptance show-down.

FIRST IN 10 YEARS

When Stairs Exploration and Mining Company officially opened its gold mine near Matchewan, Ontario, it was the first new gold mine of consequence for Ontario in a period of over 10 years. The starting up of the Stairs mine was welcomed by Ontario Mines Minister George Wardrope, who noted that many of the old Ontario gold-mining glens were now reaching the end of the road.

HIGHER MORTGAGES

"Nor does there seem to be any concern about people getting in over their depths," he added. Under the MIOC plan people are paying only 20.3 per cent of their income on average to meet interest, principal and taxes on their loan, which is considerably less than the allowable maximum of 27 per cent on NHA loans.

UNION TAKES PAUSE

Tightness of money in the short term market, which caused the collapse of Atlantic Acceptance Corporation, has caused another Canadian finance company to decline doing further loan business until its position is eased. Union Acceptance Corporation of Toronto, whose president G. F. Edgar recently denied that such stoppage of new business was in effect, has now admitted that this step had been taken because "there was not enough short term money around to help us finance it."

Comsat Chief Seeks A Rest

WASHINGTON (AP)—Leo D. Welch, chairman and chief executive officer of the Communications Satellite Corp., announced Wednesday he wants to retire from active direction of the privately-owned corporation. The former chairman of Standard Oil Company (New Jersey), who has been the active head of Comsat since it was set up in 1963, said he had advised the directors May 21.

Crane Driver Electrocuted

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—A 32-year-old construction worker died Tuesday when the crane he was operating came in contact with an overhead high-tension wire. Ken Smithers of Vanderhoof was pronounced dead on arrival at Prince George Regional Hospital from electrocution minutes after the accident.

TOO MANY MOUTHS

Brazil, now unable to feed its 78,000,000 people, is expected to have 100,000,000 people by 1970.

Mortgage Payments Easy to Collect

By HARRY YOUNG

A Canadian mortgage company formed a year ago and backed by 20 life and trust companies, has made about $200,000 of low down payment loans in its first year's operations, and has run into no collection difficulties. Mortgage Insurance Company of Canada, like some other mortgage companies, has been making loans of up to 87 1/2 per cent of the property value. "We have seen no indication that lower down payments have led to any increase in the number of foreclosures or to collection problems," said Gordon English, president of Mortgage Insurance.

Habitual Case Put Off By High Court Appeal

Habitual criminal proceedings against a Victoria man, which had been scheduled to begin Aug. 2, Wednesday were put off

Park Movies On July 12

Victoria will have Movies Under the Stars when the fourth annual Beacon Hill Park summer cinema starts July 12.

The films will be shown each Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday until Aug. 18. The series is organized by the National Film Board and the Victoria Public Library.

Monday films will deal with Canadian travel, specialty films are scheduled for Tuesdays, and the Britain Revisited series will be shown on Wednesdays.

The first day will feature short films on Atlantic adventures. The July 13 show will deal with films on Canadian performers, and the first four films of Britain Revisited will be shown July 14.

City solicitor Terence O'Grady, acting for the Crown, made the application for delay because, he said, defendant John Norman Lawrence Smith was appealing to the Supreme Court of Canada against a conviction.

The conviction, registered in Magistrate William O'Brien's court earlier this year, was for attempted breaking and entering of a downtown Victoria store.

DISMISSED

Pill Lowers Birth Rate

CANBERRA, Australia (Reuters)—Australia's birth rate in the first three months of this year dropped to its lowest figure since the Second World War, official figures released here show. Authorities blamed the drop on the introduction of the oral birth control pill.

Following the dismissal, Aug. 3 was fixed as the date for proceedings against Smith to begin in city Law Courts before Magistrate J. A. Byers.

Mr. O'Grady said Wednesday that because of the new appeal the Crown will not be proceeding against Smith on the scheduled date.

REMANDED
But he suggested the case be remanded to Aug. 3 to fix a new date for the proceedings. Magistrate O'Brien remanded the case to Aug. 3 as requested.

SAFE THEFT
A man charged following a break-in late Tuesday at Blue Bird Cafe, 708 Johnson, elected trial by judge and jury. Bail for Clifford Piper, 2943 Bridge, was set at $1,000.

Piper is charged with break-in and theft of the Blue Bird premises and with unlawful possession of a safe owned by the company.

Crown prosecutor Peter Bisset asked for a week's remand so that laboratory analysis of certain exhibits could be carried out in Vancouver. The case was remanded until July 14 to fix a date for preliminary hearing.

Whalers Talk Conservation

LONDON (AP)—Fourteen countries have agreed to try to curb the slaughter of whales, a communiqué said Wednesday.

The statement issued by the International Whaling Commission after a conference here, said measures have been drawn up to reduce catch-quotas and protect some areas.

SACRIFICES

It said delegates were told hunters must make immediate sacrifices if whaling is to survive and give an economic return. The communiqué's statistics showed in some places the catch is exceeding the number being reproduced.

Whale stocks in the North Pacific are badly threatened. Against a catch of 3,581 fin whales in 1964 there was an estimated sustainable yield of only 1,600, the figures showed. The commission decided that the four North Pacific countries—Canada, the United States, the Soviet Union and Japan—should meet as soon as possible to work out conservation measures.

PACIFIC BAN

The commission decided to forbid killing of blue whales in the Pacific and its dependent waters north of the Equator for five years beginning in 1966. Another rule was made to ban killings of humpback whales in 1966 in the North Pacific and its dependent waters north of the Equator.

OBSERVERS

Countries taking part in the talks were the U.S., the Soviet Union, Britain, Argentina, Australia, Denmark, France, Ireland, Japan, Mexico, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway and South Africa. Observers also came from Chile, Italy, Portugal and Peru.

BOON FOR NON-SMOKERS

Polish authorities plan to mark no-smoking rooms in public places so that non-smokers can be protected from smokers' diseases.

Ferry Goes On Half Hour

Departure times for the Brentwood-Mill Bay ferry are on the half hour, starting at 7:30 a.m. from the southern terminus and on the hour, starting at 8 a.m. from the north end.

On week days the last sailing is at 6:30 p.m. but there are two extra runs on Sundays and holidays, at 7:30 and 8:30 p.m. from the Brentwood alip. Southbound the ferry makes its last run at 7 p.m. weekdays, and at 8 p.m. on holidays.

Sonny Homer Signs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sonny Homer signed a three-year contract Wednesday with the B.C. Lions football team, ending a four-day training camp holdout.

Homer's signing — which happened after the veteran flanker took a car ride with general manager Herb Capozzi — left only Gary Schwertfeger outside the Lions' fold.

The big lineman — being converted to tackle from last year's linebacker position — says he is asking for "considerably more" money than the Lions paid him last year.

Vancouver Golfer Takes Junior Event

VANCOUVER (CP) — Al Greenstreet of Vancouver birdied a playoff hole to win the British Columbia junior golf championship Wednesday.

Greenstreet, 18, who was in third place with 146 — three strokes behind leader Steve Cole of Seattle — at the end of 36 holes Tuesday, fired an even-par 71 in the last round to tie Cole who blew to a 74.

In the playoff hole Cole hit a par four, but Greenstreet came back with a birdie to take the title.

Jim Brady of Seattle slipped to fourth place with a third-round nine-over-par 80. He was just one stroke behind at the end of the second round Tuesday with 144.

Jim Scully of Vancouver shot a 78 Wednesday for a 54-hole total of 217 to finish in third spot.

Golfing Teeners Reach Semis

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two teenagers continue to surprise the gallery at the B.C. Women's Closed golf championship in Vancouver.

Blonde, deliberate Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops and bubbly, dark-haired Susan Brown of Vancouver each won her quarter-final match Wednesday against veteran golfers.

Maria Palmer downed Janet McWha of North Vancouver but had to go to the extra, 19th, hole to turn the trick.

In other quarter-final matches Yvonne Clarke defeated Mrs. Lorraine Smyth five and three, while Mrs. Bryce Evans downed Mrs. Nettie Taverna five and four.

In matches today, Barbara Renwick will meet Mrs. Len Collett and Mrs. Marion Garnett plays Mrs. Dorothy Mc-

Cornick of Victoria in consolation matches.

In the semi-finals for the title it will be Miss Brown against Mrs. Evans and Miss Palmer against Miss Clark.

'Impossible' Angled Shot Knocks Over Shamrocks

By JIM TAYLOR

Fred Usselman stands 6'5" and barely has to bend to scratch his knees.

He used those long, long arms last night to give Vancouver Carlings an 8-7 victory over Victoria Shamrocks in the Inter-City Lacrosse League. No one else in the league could make the play that beat them.

At 13:27 of the final period, Usselman was standing with the ball to one side of the Shamrock goal. The angle was patently impossible. But Usselman bent over, his arms stretching like Plastic Man, and put the ball in.

But in it went, and with it went a great Shamrock comeback, wasted in as tough a game as you're liable to see this season.

After one quarter, the Rocks trailed 5-1. But they shut out Vancouver for 20 minutes and 48 seconds, battered their way back, and finally got it tied up at 6-6 midway in the third quarter.

reach, the ball would have hit Skip Chapman. One inch further and it would have been past the net. As it was, it scraped the post going in.

Gord Fredrickson put Vancouver ahead again at 3:04 of the fourth period, Larry Clarkson tied it up with his second of the night at 3:08, and they struggled the rest of the way until Usselman's winner.

Actually, Usselman need never have gotten the ball. Shamrocks had it, and lost possession because Larry Clarkson failed to shoot within the one-minute time limit. Seconds later it was down the floor to Usselman and in the net.

GREAT TO WATCH

The Shamrock comeback was built on sweat and muscle, and it made great watching.

Billy Gray, who had fought past Pete Black for their only goal of the first quarter, outmuscled Mike Treloar for their second at 5:46 of the second period. Eight seconds later, Nirmal Dillon scored from Reg Foster.

BEST GOAL

And then came the goal of the night. Larry Biggs took off after a loose ball on the boards, barged into three Vancouver players, spilled all three of them, and found himself with a breakaway. He raced in on Norm Neatman and scored with an acrobatic twist after he was past the net.

But Shamrocks lost for the want of a consistent power play. They had three chances, all on penalties to Usselman, and didn't get a goal. Vancouver had three tries and scored twice. There, as it has been so many times, this season, was the big difference.

STILL TIED

Rocks are still tied for third place with Coquitlam Adanacs, who have two games in hand and pick them up tonight and Saturday, against first-place New Westminster.

Koufax Clobbered Reds Lead Again

Cincinnati Reds man-handled Sandy Koufax last night and hung on to beat Los Angeles Dodgers 7-6 to regain the National League lead by two percentage points.

Koufax, who hasn't lost a game since May 26, was going for his 15th victory, but the Reds pounded him for five runs in the first two innings. Reliever Bob Miller took the loss.

The Dodgers caught up at 6-6 in the eighth when Jim Lefebvre forgot his .217 average and hit a two-run homer, but Leon Cardenas won it for the Reds with a homer with two out in the bottom of the ninth.

LEAD OUT

Minnesota Twins won their seventh straight in the American League, beating Boston Red Sox, 5-2, but had their lead cut to half a game. Cleveland Indians got within 1 1/2 games by taking Chicago White Sox twice by 4-3 scores, going 11 innings for the second game.

Larry Brown opened the Cleveland 11th with a single off Hoyt Wilhelm, but the knuckleball ace retired the next two men. Dick Howser, running for Brown, stole second, and Rocky Colavito singled him home.

Chuck Hinton walked, Fred Whitfield singled for a run, and another scored on a throwing error to make it 4-1. Chicago

Gibson went all the way to lose 4-3 to San Francisco Giants on a two-run homer by Tom Haller with two out in the 13th inning. The loss ended the Cardinal streak at seven straight victories.

CUBS WIN

Billy Williams cloaked a home run and two singles and rookie catcher Chris Krug batted in four runs with a pair of bases-loaded singles to lead Chicago Cubs to an 8-3 victory over New York Mets.

Cuba pitcher Larry Jackson was tagged for 10 hits and needed help from Ted Abernathy in the eighth inning but managed to record his 11th victory without a defeat over the Mets since they entered the league in 1962.

KEY BLAST

Chris Short's three-hit pitching and a lead-off homer in the eighth inning by Clay Dalrymple carried Philadelphia Phillies to a 1-0 victory over Pittsburgh Pirates.

Short, bringing his record to 10-4, was locked in a pitching duel all the way with Bob Friend who lost his seventh in 11 decisions when Dalrymple homered.

got one run back in the bottom of the inning off Jack Spring, but reliever Don McMahon came in to stop them.

Stu Miller saved a 1-0 victory for John Miller of Baltimore, coming in against Kansas City with two on and one out. He stopped that threat and gave up only one single the rest of the way.

YANKEES IN

In other American League action, Cleo Boyer drove in three runs and led New York Yankees to a 4-3 victory over Detroit Tigers.

In the National League, world series hero Bob Gibson of St. Louis Cardinals continued to be plagued by misfortune.

Murdoch Paces Californians

Ray Murdoch put on a dazzling one-man batting and bowling performance that kept the Southern California touring cricket side undefeated, downing B.C. Cricket Association presidents' eleven by six wickets in the fourth game of Victoria cricket week action yesterday at Beacon Hill Park.

Murdoch hammered out 70 runs in 42 minutes including six sixes and five fours to power California to their third win, after collecting three wickets for 14 runs to lead the Californians' bowling. Vancouver opened the batting to score 15 runs for eight wickets before declaring. Ray Robins and Peter Clarke led the Vancouver attack with 10 runs each.

Today's cricket action sees a representative Victoria eleven take on a second Vancouver side at 1:30 p.m. at Beacon Hill Park.

Judo Expert Really Expert

Move Over, James Bond

By GUY STANLEY

James Bond would be lost without his Beretta if he had to tangle with Take Nagashi Uryu, 25-year-old judo expert from Japan. Five-foot-six, weighing 165 pounds, the little Japanese makes Odd-Job look about as formidable as a peanut butter and jelly sandwich and doesn't need a steel-brimmed bowler hat to do it.

BETS IT UP

In Victoria for two weeks to coach the Victoria Judo Club in the finer points of technique and set up a regular training schedule for them, Uryu, a fourth degree black belt, has fought in the B.C. open, the B.C. closed and Stevenson judo tournaments, not only winning his weight division but defeating all the other black belts in the house to emerge as grand champion of all three tournaments.

NOT ENOUGH

"It's very good," says Uryu. "But Canadians don't train hard enough."

Uryu trained three hours a day for seven days a week when he started judo in high school in Japan, and went on to become an all-star member of the Kato university judo team before taking a degree in city planning.

Seemingly bent on changing Canadians' ideas about training, Uryu rattled off a shading warm-up of 50 leg raises and sit-ups followed by 50 pushups together with several minutes of less vigorous twisting exercises that left the Victorians gasping far behind.

WORKS HARD

Then, not even breathing hard, he began his instruction, smilingly demonstrating fundamental techniques with utmost patience and precision, changing a man's stance ever so slightly until he was satisfied.

Having made sure that his students had gotten the message, he would repeat the trick at full speed, nonchalantly launching his opponent, usually Jim Ramsay, a six-foot, 200-pound Victoria city policeman with a first degree black belt, high into the air to land with a crash at his feet.

On his visit to B.C., sponsored by the B.C. Black Belt Association, Uryu will conduct similar coaching clinics throughout the province.

John Yankoski, who took over from Cliff Rutledge in the second inning was the winning pitcher. Don Moseley and George Brice shared mound honors for Rawlings.

Transports Closer To League Lead

George Fuller hammered in three runs including the key single in a five-run first-inning flurry to spark Transport Workers to a 10-4 win over Rawlings Plumbing and Heating in last night's Senior Amateur League baseball action at Royal Athletic Park.

Fuller's two-run single built on Mike McAvoy's one run double was followed by Keith Dagg's two-run single to account for the early five-run score. Fuller's third run came in the top of the eighth inning.

The win moves Transports within striking distance of first place, which will be decided tonight when league-leading Grooves takes on Transports at

Pack It In

Summer jobs have sunk the War Amps so far as the rest of this year's Connie Mack League baseball action is concerned. Amps, unable to field a full team as all but a few players were working last night, defaulted their second successive game, losing to David Motors at Windsor Park.

The win moves Davids to within half a game of league-leading Evening Optimists.

Although War Amps will not play in any more season games, the schedule will continue unchanged except that teams slated to play the Amps will remain inactive that night.

Thin Glove KO'd Sonny

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cus D'Amato, ex-manager of former heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson, told the U.S. Congress Wednesday that Cus's Clay used a combination of punching and padding to knock out Sonny Liston in one minute.

D'Amato said Liston's managers outsmarted themselves by: insisting the fighters use a "Fraser" glove during the match in Lewiston, Maine, last May. The glove, he said, is the proper weight, but is padded to leave a boxer's knuckles almost uncovered.

The former manager said he saw the blow hit Liston, adding that a snap punch with the Fraser glove could do as much damage as a solid punch on a fighter's chin. "Liston's managers were victims of their own strategy" because Sonny was a heavy hitter and the "Fraser" glove would have been to his advantage if the fight had lasted longer, D'Amato said.

He recalled that some of Patterson's opponents wanted to use the same type of glove but he had overruled the request.

D'Amato appeared before the U.S. House commerce committee to give his support to the proposed federal boxing commission. He said, however, that its members would have to have a practical knowledge of the professional sport and a realization that it is a business that cannot be run by amateurs.

"Promoters are in boxing to make money" but many state commissions try to get them to arrange matches that will not attract the public, he said. Also supporting the measure were Nat Fleishman, editor of Ring Magazine; Melvin L. Krulwich, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission; and Frederic H. Brooks, president of Sportsvision Inc., a closed circuit television firm.

Tony Lema Leading In British Tourney

From AP-Reuters

SOUTHPORT, England (CP) — Defending champion Tony Lema of the United States needed only 23 putts to fashion a sparkling five-under-par 69 Wednesday that gave him a one-stroke lead at the end of the first round of the British Open golf championship.

Lema, known as Champagne Tony on the pro circuit, fired six birdies in his sizzling round that set a course record for the reconstructed Royal Birkdale links in this English seaside town.

NICKLAUS 73
Ireland's Christy O'Connor was breathing down Lema's back with a 69, but the favorite, Jack Nicklaus, trailed by five strokes with a par 73. Nicklaus, the U.S. Masters champion, had a miserable time with his drives.

Another American, Arnold Palmer, two-time winner of the British Open, stayed in contention with a 70, sharing third place with Joe Carr, the Irish veteran who has been one of the leading amateurs since the Second World War. Then came Bruce Devlin, the tough Australian, with a 71.

14 SMASH PAR
Lema, Palmer and Nicklaus were the only U.S. players in a contingent of eight to break or equal par among the 23 players who did it. Fourteen players among the 130 starters smashed par while eight equalled it.

Nine players, most of them from the United Kingdom, also were in the running with 72. They were Englishmen Lionel Platts, Brian Bamford, Guy Wolstenholme, Doug Sewell and R. M. Mandeville; Scotsmen Erio Brown and J. McAllister; Ireland's Christy Greff and Sebastian Miguel of Spain.

WITH JACK
Bracketed with Nicklaus at 73 were Welsh stars Dave Thomas and Brian Huggett, Englishmen Peter Allis, Hugh Boyle, Neil Coles and J. A. MacDonald and Doug Beattie of Scotland.

Another 18 holes will be played today with the top 45 players and ties going into the final 36 holes Friday.

The 210-pound Nicklaus sprayed his drives and found the greens bumpy on the windswept 7,037-yard seaside links, but he was far better off than Gary Player of South Africa, the U.S. Open champion, who slipped to a 76 after taking a two-over-par seven on the 15th hole when he bunkered his shot.

Sammy Spence, the 53-year-old slammer who won the title in 1965, shot a creditable 74. Altogether 17 players finished with 75. They included Kel Nagle of Australia, loser in a playoff to Player for the U.S. Open title two weeks ago; another former champion, Max Faulstich of Britain, and Roberto de Vincenzo of Argentina, a frequent challenger but never a winner.

While the course had hidden dangers for most of the field, it failed to confuse Lema who hit his irons magnificently and putted like a magician.

The suave Californian, who won the title last year at St. Andrews, Scotland, had seven one-putt greens and three-putted none.

It was a round all the more brilliant because Lema, a late arrival, had had only two practice sessions over the recently altered course.

By Friday one golfer from somewhere in the world will have mounted the winner's rostrum at Royal Birkdale, Lancashire, flashed a toothpaste-ad smile at the press and been announced "British Open Champion 1968".

To be realistic about it, it's a lot of fame for three days' work.

But I wonder what the pensioner down in the Rhonda, or the 68-week cobbler in Spain, or even the garage-hand in wealthy old Houston, Texas, would think about it if he knew the truth?

The truth is that for those three days' work the winner need never do another stroke in his life.

If so inclined he could settle down in a comfortable home, send his kids to good schools, have a small cottage in the country, a car for his wife and himself and not have to worry even remotely about the chill winds in old age.

All ladies and gentlemen, for having put together four rounds of golf for an aggregate just one shot fewer than anyone else in the field!

Where's the Money, Max?

If you tell me there's no justice in the world, what else could I do but agree. And I'm a professional golfer.

The obvious question, then, must surely be why is it that Max Faulkner, winner of the British Open in 1951, is beginning to sound like Karl Marx with a hangover? Didn't he win himself a packet? What's he moaning about?

The answers are very simple. No, Faulkner did not win a packet. But neither is he moaning. He accepts the fact that the tremendous commercialism of present day golf began only after he had won his title.

To be quite honest I cannot even remember what the first prize actually was when I won the championship. It might have been $1,500 but I suspect it was more like $1,200.

Today it is more than three times greater. But that is not the half of it. In fact, it is not even 20 per cent of it. Commercialism of the big-time win is now so colossal that I read that Peter Allis has calculated that the British Open Champion, particularly if he were a Briton, could make himself $200,000 from "outside" sources.

Personally I should say that around $120,000 is nearer the mark. But maybe I'm just revealing my naive again! Certainly I was approached by commercial concerns after I had won the Open in 1951. But, frankly, I was so thrilled at having won the title, a gold medal, a great honor for Britain and the chance to present my driver, alongside those of former Open Champions, to St. Andrews, that I didn't screw every penny out of the occasion that I might have done.

Golf's Little Millionaire

How times have changed. In an interview not many months ago Gary Player told a reporter: "I honestly can't tell you how much I'm worth at the moment. But I know that by 37 it will be $4,000,000."

Now Gary has won some fabulous prizes playing golf. But not 10 per cent of his income has come that way. The big money in golf comes from advertising, endorsements, personal appearances, tours and writing your views for anyone prepared to read them. It is a fantastic business—and it didn't exist just 14 years ago.

I am not remotely bitter. My health is good, my life is a fine one, my family is not on the breadline. But, believe me, if I won the Open Championship again I would quite literally cash in 3,000 per cent greater than I did in 1951.

I suppose it is the same in other sports. Sir Stanley Matthews who, for me, remains the greatest soccer player of them all, was exercising his skills at a time when $80 a week was all a footballer could earn. Now, if rumor is right, there is one forward in Britain earning $800 a week.

Golf, if anything, is an even greater gold mine. Which is why, if I were a 20-year-old British professional, I would swear that five years from now it would be me walking up the steps to be hailed as British Open Champion of 1970.

Hungerford Back Next Year

Rower's Season All Over

HENLEY ON THAMES, England (CP)—Olympic champion oarsman George Hungerford of Vancouver said Wednesday night he will not row again competitively until next spring—all because he could not sleep one recent night.

Hungerford, 23, who won the Olympic pairs title with Roger Jackson of Toronto at Tokyo last fall, said a series of medical tests completed Wednesday have shown he is suffering from a mild form of anemia.

His British doctor has ordered him to limit himself to only normal activity until the hemoglobin count in his blood—part of the blood that carries oxygen to the muscles—rises to normal levels.

SIX WEEKS

"I'll be at least six weeks off training," Hungerford said in an interview, "which means, of course, that I'll be finished for this summer."

"And since the season generally ends at the end of August that means I won't begin training for competition again until next spring."

He now has his eye on making the Canadian team to the 1968 world championships to be held in Yugoslavia.

TOOK PILLS
Hungerford said the specialists who gave him a "fantastic" series of X-rays and other tests in nearby Reading concluded that his condition was the result of internal bleeding, brought on by taking several pain-killing pills a few nights before the Henley Royal Regatta "so I could go to sleep."

Emotional upset brought on by pre-race nerves also contributed to the bleeding.

He and Jackson were upset by an East London crew in the Henley pairs competition last week. Hungerford said later he was "all but unconscious for the latter part of the race because of the lack of oxygen in his bloodstream."

Hungerford said he leaves today for the continent to see Jackson and three other Vancouver rowers take part Saturday in a four-oared competition at a regatta in Lucerne, Switzerland.

He will travel with the Canadians while they attend several other regattas, then return to Canada Aug. 9 and begin preparation for entering his first year of law school at the University of British Columbia this fall.

Caber Labor Pays Off On Third Cut

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — They had a problem getting the caber airborne at the 42nd annual Scottish Highland Games.

About 12,000 spectators turned out, some in kilts, for the muscle-straining competition sponsored by the Round Hill Scottish Games Association.

None of the 19 contestants was able to throw the caber at its original length of 19 feet, five inches. Following tradition, the officials sawed off a piece, but still no one could make the required end-over-end toss.

After two more cuts, the pole was down to a tailable 12 feet, eight inches, and Bill Depperman, 23, of Chappaqua, N.Y., won the event.

Navy Insists on Two-Ounce Blasts

Outboards Scare Fish

Outboard motors probably scare more fish and do more damage to fish than the small underwater explosives set off in Saanich Inlet, a naval spokesman said Wednesday.

Earlier a member of the federal government's sports fishing advisory committee, Jim Gilbert, expressed concern over welfare of small fish in the area following dropping of small explosives in the inlet between Mill Bay and Patricia Bay by the RCN.

DANGEROUS

Fishing guide and marina owner Mr. Gilbert felt the explosions had a "deflate effect" on and were dangerous to the fish.

Naval spokesmen said the explosives had been set off every six weeks for the past four years.

"There are some young salmon fry and smolt, miniature coho, from the Cowichan River moving in concentrated schools on the surface in this area. These fish are fragile little things from one to five inches in length and any excess pressure and percussion could be detrimental to them," said Mr. Gilbert.

UPSET FISH

"There are also some young coho maturing here at this time which will be ready to spawn in the fall, and the eggs suffer under pressure."

"These explosions upset the natural feeding pattern of the fish, spooking and scaring them, making them not available to sports fishermen," he added.

Spokesman for the navy said the explosives were used for routine testing of sonobuoys, an anti-submarine device.

"It is a safe bet that the outboard motors used by sports fishermen do much more damage than these small two-ounce efforts ever do," he said.

"The amount is not large enough to kill any fish," he added.

He explained the inlet was used for testing purposes because it was a sheltered waterway, deep enough to handle the tests, and because facilities and personnel were nearby.

"Testing will keep up as long as it is necessary," he added.

Three Identify Murder Suspect

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three trust company employees Wednesday identified 24-year-old Roger Allan Fulton as the man who shot their fellow worker during a holdup May 19.

They were testifying at the preliminary hearing into a capital murder charge against Fulton, accused of shooting trust company official Jan Kelderman.

Milton Lake, manager of the branch at which Kelderman worked, identified Fulton at the hearing as the gunman. Two women employees backed up his evidence.

Strikers Ask Peterson's Help

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (OCA) asked Labor Minister Les Peterson to intervene Wednesday in a camp-in strike at an oil refinery in neighboring Burnaby.

R. T. Philip, Union International Representative, said the decision was made by the executive board of the local.

He said the labor minister was asked by telephone to try to bring Shell Oil Co. around to the issue of firing of local chairman Jerry Le Bourdais.

Meanwhile, 100 union members continued to camp at the company's Shellburn Refinery, apparently prepared for a long siege.

The men are dayshift workers who sat down on the job Monday to protest what the union called intimidation of the workers to put in overtime.

Le Bourdais was subsequently fired and members of the other two shifts began picketing outside the plant.

"They (the company) are holding one man solely responsible and demanding his scalp to get a settlement," Philip said.

He said the firing placed an insurmountable problem in the way of any settlement.

An injunction granted the company to prevent union members from picketing and disarming customers from using Shell products does not affect the men camped on the company property.

The campers were being supplied by wives and union members handing food over a fence.

A. J. Foote, refinery manager, said the camp-in has not hindered production, being carried out by supervisory personnel.

Charges Due Today

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Police Lt. Tom O'Neal will be charged today with assault with intent to commit murder in the shooting of a 21-year-old man he believed was a suspect in the gang rape of his daughter.

Paul Enard, deputy district attorney, said the decision was made to file the charge against the veteran officer, who already has been relieved of his duties as commander of the vice detail of the university division, Los Angeles police department.

CHARGES FOR FIVE

The grand jury Wednesday also agreed to hear evidence Friday against five men accused of three counts each of the rape of O'Neal's daughter, Shirley Diane, 19. The five already face criminal charges.

O'Neal's case will not be brought before the grand jury. He is at liberty on $3,500 bail.

ELIMINATED

The shooting of Carl E. Norman, since virtually eliminated as a suspect, took place Friday in the hallway of the West San Fernando Valley division of police headquarters.

Norman still faces a charge of possessing a narcotic, marijuana, and was linked with several motorcycle and car club enthusiasts present in the house where the girl was attacked June 29.

New System Attacks Weeds

FREDERICTON (CP) — A new system of applying brush and weed-killing chemicals from helicopters on a large scale was officially shown for the first time in North America Wednesday at Camp Gagetown, N.B., largest army training camp in the Commonwealth.

Two chemicals were involved in the demonstration which showed a way of controlling the spray from aircraft.

Another member of the same chemical family of the controlling agent was also demonstrated Wednesday at the Maritime forestry station in Fredericton, where a new way of regulations and smothering forest fires was shown.

During the display at the army camp, the present method of dropping liquid chemical killers for either animal or plant life was shown in the drifting spray from the first helicopter. The new system — which adds a carrier agent to thicken the liquid — was shown as a spray which drops specifically on target without drift. A chemical company demonstrated the chemical for an audience of government and military officials.

The herbicide being shown publicly for the first time is said to represent a breakthrough in chemical research. Applied to the leaves and stems and entering the roots, it destroys all plant life except grass within a year, the company says.

The herbicide is called Tordon, a short form of a chemical designation. The thickening agent serving as a carrier is called Norbak.

Gelgard, a first cousin of the same chemical family as Norbak, has been tested in many parts of North America for fire-fighting. It was shown to government officials Wednesday in a miniature forest fire demonstration at the forestry station.

It is being used in British Columbia by aircraft for control of the serious forest fires there.

Beacon Hill fire soon doused

Beacon Hill Park and Saanich

Firemen Douse Grass Fires

Minor grass fires kept Victoria and district firemen busy Wednesday.

First Beacon Hill blaze broke out around lunch time at the north end of the park.

Third fire was around 3:30 p.m. at the Catherine and Wilson intersection.

Saanich firemen extinguished a grass fire also on Alderley just after 3 p.m.

Delegation to Meet Hydro Gas Officials

B.C. Hydro has agreed to meet a delegation from the Victoria-Vancouver Island branch of the Canadian Restaurant Association on the controversial gas price issue stirred up by the association earlier this year.

Hydro regional manager L. E. Wight while issuing the invitation to the restauranters to discuss points raised in a recently submitted brief by the association, has stated flatly, however, that he could not foresee any reduction in Island gas rates.

The restauranters have charged that both local businesses and domestic users are paying twice as much for gas as Lower Mainland consumers and are demanding relief from what they consider to be "arbitrary rates."

Public concern over the differential is growing. Over 200 in the Greater Victoria area have put their names to a petition protesting their gas prices.

Bill Webb, local CRA branch president, said Wednesday that no date had been mentioned for the meeting with Mr. Wight.

He added, however, that the association would probably report on the discussions to local M.L.A.'s interested in the controversy.

They include Victoria member J. Donald Smith, who has said that he intends pressing for lower prices for all Victoria gas consumers in the next legislature. "There appears there may be very good grounds for calling for price equalization," he is on record as saying.

Hydro officials have meanwhile replied that supplying gas to Greater Victoria is already a losing proposition.

While the Lower Mainland is served by natural gas, butane is shipped in from the Peace River to supply Island needs. Piping natural gas to the Island is not considered economic.

Complaints have suggested in return that B.C. Hydro should subsidize gas distribution here.

Greater Victoria residents are flocking to voice their objections along with the restaurant men.

In the past three weeks, 200 have signed a petition in Mr. Webb's Broad Street cafe.

"The people themselves suggested this petition," said Mr. Webb, and "I have been surprised by the response."

"Elderly people have even rung me and asked whether I could add their names to the petition, but I have told them they will have to come down and sign it themselves."

Several more restaurants would be starting petitions within the next week in response to demands Mr. Webb added.

"I think this is showing just how great public concern is on this issue," he said.

Cardin Gets Justice Post In New Cabinet Shakeup

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson juggled his ministry Wednesday, sending little-known Lucien Cardin into the justice portfolio and calling on two parliamentary secretaries to join the cabinet.

Seven men were involved in the changes dictated mainly by the need to find a new role for Guy Favreau and plug the hole left when he resigned as justice minister last week over the Dorion report.

Mr. Cardin, 46-year-old American-born lawyer who gained a reputation for administrative skill as associate defence minister, takes over the justice post following only five months as public works minister.

HEADS PRIVY COUNCIL

Mr. Favreau, 47, is to continue as Quebec leader while holding special responsibilities for federal-provincial relations.

He has been given the nominal post of Privy Council president, succeeding George McIlraith, 56, who retains the government House leadership and takes on Mr. Cardin's old job in works.

The two new ministers are Larry Pennell, 50-year-old parliamentary secretary to Finance Minister Gordon, who becomes solicitor-general, and Jean-Luc Pepin, the scholarly, 40-year-old parliamentary secretary to Trade Minister Sharp, who becomes minister without portfolio.

PEPIN TO TRANSPORT

Mr. Pepin is to help Transport Minister Pickersgill run that vast department until it is decided whether to carve it in two or create an associate ministry.

Sole departure from the cabinet was William Benidickson, who is resigning because of bad health and going to the Senate. J. Watson MacNaught, previously solicitor-general, takes over Mr. Benidickson's portfolio of mines and technical surveys.

The juggling won little enthusiasm from opposition spokesmen, and the retention of Mr. Favreau in the ministry

McIlraith

was strongly criticized by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and Creditiste Leader Caouette.

Mr. Diefenbaker said if Mr. Favreau was unfit to be justice minister "he's unfit for any other parliamentary portfolio."

Mr. Caouette said Mr. Favreau should not be in the cabinet and should have followed Liberal MP Guy Rouleau who Tuesday agreed to quit as a member of Parliament for his efforts to win bail for narcotics trafficker Lucien Rivard.

NDP Leader Douglas said he is disappointed that more young blood was not brought into the cabinet, but thought Mr. Favreau's new job was a "good slow" for him.

NOT OPPOSED

Mr. Douglas said he is not opposed to Mr. Favreau serving in the government, only to his holding any responsibility for administration. In his new job Mr. Favreau could use his negotiating skills to good advantage with provincial premiers, the NDP leader added.

Mr. Favreau, interviewed at Government House following the swearing-in ceremony by Governor-General Vanier, said he was very pleased with his new job.

He said it was too early to say what tasks he will take on in handling federal-provincial relations. His role would be set out by the prime minister, he said.

CAUGHT BY SURPRISE

The two new ministers were caught by surprise by their appointments.

Mr. Pepin, a political scientist and a witty public speaker, thought when he was called Tuesday afternoon to Mr. Pearson's Sussex Drive residence that he was to be asked to become parliamentary secretary to the prime minister to replace Mr. Rouleau.

He was pleased with his appointment, but confessed his only experience with transportation was the fact his father is a retired CNR freight agent.

FLUENT IN ENGLISH

Mr. Pepin, MP for Drummond-Arthabaska, is considered a "new guard" Liberal and his fluent English has helped him become a platform hit with many English-Canadian audiences.

He is a native of Drummondville, Que., a graduate in law and philosophy from the University of Ottawa, and of the political science school of Paris.

Mr. Pennell lacks Mr. Pepin's oratorical skill, but has made up for this with his knowledgeable and polite way of handling some parts of Finance Minister Gordon's business in the House.

FROUD TO BE ASKED

Mr. Pennell said he is proud to be asked to join the ministry, especially because it was headed by Mr. Pearson.

For the moment the excitement of the appointment helped him forget that under redistribution he will become a cabinet minister without a riding. The proposed redistribution of federal ridings would wipe out his Brant-Haldimand constituency.

Mr. Pennell, a native of Brantford, served in the RCAF during the Second World War. He was first elected to the Commons in 1962 and appointed parliamentary secretary to Mr. Gordon a year ago.

CARVED A NICHE

Mr. Cardin, who speaks English without a trace of accent, was permitted to carve a niche for himself as associate defence minister—a post that has been little more than a title for some politicians.

He helped Defence Minister Healy with many administrative problems in bringing about initial integration of the armed forces. He also answered for the minister in the Commons on many occasions.

Born in Providence, R.I., he came to Canada at the age of 12 and served on corvettes in the Canadian navy during the Second World War.

ELECTED IN 1963

He has represented the Richelieu-Verchères riding since 1962—his uncle, P. J. A. Cardin, held it before him—and joined the cabinet in 1963. He remained associate defence minister for almost two years until he replaced Jean-Paul Deschatelets who resigned the works portfolio in February for personal reasons.

Mr. Benidickson, 54, goes to the Senate after representing the Kamour-Rainy River riding for 20 years. Although a loyal Liberal party member, he always listed his political affiliation as Liberal-Labor in line with practice in the constituency.

Byelections Will Test Pearson's Popularity

By FRANK KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Pearson now has the opportunity to test his government's popularity in three by-elections. So far there have been no signs he wants to grab it.

The first seat became vacant in the Commons weeks ago when George Nowlan, the former Conservative Finance Minister, died.

TEST IN STRENGTH

Two more opened up this week when Prime Minister Pearson fired Guy Rouleau, his former parliamentary secretary who was involved in the Lucien Rivard scandal, and shifted Mines and Technical Surveys Minister William Benidickson to the Senate.

Mr. Nowlan's riding of Digby-Annapolis-Kings in Nova Scotia could provide an interesting test of strength for both Conservatives and Liberals.

In spite of his huge personal following Mr. Nowlan only won by 416 votes in 1963. His majority in 1962 was almost 3,000 and in 1958 and 57 more than 5,000.

LIBERAL AREA

Mr. Nowlan was first elected in 1948. Before that the area had been Liberal. Before his death he had expressed fear that it was becoming Liberal again.

The whole province of Nova Scotia is almost evenly split between Conservatives and Liberals with the former having six and the latter five seats.

Both the other ridings have been Liberal for years. Mr. Rouleau, whose actions on behalf of suspected narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard were branded as "reprehensible" by Chief Justice Dorion, has held the riding of Dollard since it was formed in 1952.

STILL WON

He had a majority of 17,400 in 1963, and 11,000 in 1962. Even in 1958 when the Conservatives won 55 seats in Quebec, he won by 2,000 votes.

Mr. Rouleau was first elected to the Commons in 1945 as a Liberal-Labor member and has won every election since.

His majority in 1963 was 8,500 and in 1962 8,289. In 1958, the year of the great Conservative sweep, he won by only 113 votes.

PEARSON SMILED

At the press conference yesterday Mr. Pearson was reminded of a statement made by his Transport Minister Pickersgill that by-elections should be held within six months of a vacancy.

He smiled and said he was aware of Mr. Pickersgill's theory and he agreed that the vacancies should be filled as soon as possible.

But he didn't say when.

Privy Council Move 'Sorry, Sordid Mess'

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said Wednesday Prime Minister Pearson's decision to name Guy Favreau president of the Privy Council only added to the "sorry, sordid mess" of the Rivard case.

He compared the affair to Britain's Profumo scandal and said retention of the former justice minister in the cabinet made the situation in Ottawa "immeasurably worse."

The Progressive Conservative leader, here on a speaking engagement, told a press conference the Privy Council presidency is a position of honor and respect.

Satellite Films Clouds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Tiro 10 weather satellite launched July 2 took its first pictures of the earth's cloud cover Wednesday and "they were very good," an official said.

Tiro 10 has joined three other spacecraft on storm and cloud patrol during the 1965 hurricane and typhoon season.

"If he (Favreau) wasn't fit to be minister of Justice, he's unfit for any other parliamentary portfolio," he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the prime minister's action would not have happened in any other country in the world.

"Profumo was not driven from public life because of his extramarital life, but because he deceived the House of Commons. One can never agree in Parliament on the interpretation of facts, but the facts must be true," he said.

LIED TO HOUSE

John Profumo, British minister of war, resigned from the cabinet admitting he had lied to Parliament about his relations with playgirl Christine Keeler.

OTTAWA (CP)—NDP Leader Douglas today described Prime Minister Pearson's cabinet changes as minimal but approved the appointment of Guy Favreau to handle federal-provincial relations.

Mr. Douglas said in an interview he had hoped the prime minister would undertake a more extensive overhaul of his ministry by moving more "aggressive and progressive" MPs to the front benches.

Wilson Rides Out Three Defeats

Labor Government Stays

LONDON (Reuters)—An authoritative government source said Wednesday the Labor government has no intention of resigning despite three stinging pre-dawn defeats in the House of Commons.

The statement was made as Prime Minister Wilson met with his top ministers to discuss the defeats, which caught the Labor party by surprise during an overnight debate on sections of the government's complex finance bill.

There was an air of anti-climax when the House of Commons resumed debate on the bill later Wednesday.

Edward Heath, the Conservative party's finance expert, did not challenge Chancellor of the Exchequer James Callaghan on the government's position. Instead, both sides of the House began a routine consideration of the finance bill.

During the debate the Conservatives succeeded in defeating the government by two majorities of 13 and one of 14.

Labor immediately charged, four in the 630-seat House, was already smarting from Conservative attacks on Callaghan and Economics Minister George Brown for speeches in which the two ministers disparaged the Tories.

An all-party House of Commons committee was investigating a speech by Callaghan to determine whether he committed a breach of parliamentary privilege in saying he thought of some Conservative members as "capital speculators."

The Wilson administration, which has only a majority of four in the 630-seat House, was already smarting from Conservative attacks on Callaghan and Economics Minister George Brown for speeches in which the two ministers disparaged the Tories.

An all-party House of Commons committee was investigating a speech by Callaghan to determine whether he committed a breach of parliamentary privilege in saying he thought of some Conservative members as "capital speculators."

Market Members Discuss Crisis

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—The European Common Market, boycotted by France and in the dark about President de Gaulle's intentions, is continuing efforts to solve the worst crisis in its eight-year existence.

The executive commission of the six-country community met Wednesday in secret under its president, Walter Hallstein of West Germany, for the second time since the crisis broke to work out compromise proposals.

The commission did not finish working out its proposals, however, and adjourned until next Tuesday.

France withdrew its ambassador, Jean - Marc Boegner, from community headquarters last Tuesday and said French delegates would not attend any meetings for the present because of last week's failure of the Six to agree on agriculture finance.

Students Act as Ambassadors

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor General Vanier told a group of Canadian high school students Wednesday they should follow the example of the Queen and give their lives to the service of their country and the Commonwealth.

Speaking at Government House to 35 students who are taking part in the Commonwealth youth movement's annual travel "quest," Governor General Vanier said: "In each country you visit, you will be acting as Canadian ambassadors. Many people when you meet will not previously have met other Canadians. They will be anxious to know the sort of country that Canada is, and they will draw opinions from your behaviour. If you are knowledgeable about Canada and anxious to learn about the nations which you visit, so our country will be judged to be wise and intelligent."

The teen-agers, who come from nearly all parts of Canada, will meet "questors" from other parts of the Commonwealth this summer during a tour in Great Britain and Belgium. Following the European part of the tour, a group of teen-agers from Gibraltar are to visit various parts of Canada.

Computers Find Oil

MOSCOW (Reuters)—A computer has found oil in the northern Caucasus region where top Russian geologists failed, the Russian news agency Tass reported Wednesday.

Forests Closed

OLYMPIA, Wash., (AP)—More than 1,000,000 acres of forest land in 14 western Washington counties were closed to the public at midnight Tuesday by state land commissioner Bert Cole because of fire hazard. Cole also closed small parts of the Gifford Pinchot, Mt. Baker, Olympic, Snoqualmie and Wenatchee national forests at the request of the U.S. Forest Service.

The annual closures, which will last 90 days unless extended, mean that only industrial operations and permanent residents will be allowed into the areas.

War-blinded Lord Fraser, lieutenant-governor plant maple

Visit Government House

White Cane Veterans On Special City Tour

By IAN SMITH

Except for the white cane and the ceremony, they might have been members of any group of tourists visiting Victoria.

The members of the Sir Arthur Pearson Association of War-Blinded of Canada joined and attended a luncheon and went on a tour of the city during their stay Wednesday.

They enjoyed themselves thoroughly, blind or not.

But all were silent when they stood before the Cenotaph at the Legislative Buildings as the commemorative wreath was laid.

Later they ate lunch at the Empress Hotel and then the group of 350 paid a visit to Government House, where Lord Fraser of Lonsdale took part in a tree-planting ceremony with Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes.

Lord Fraser, who was blinded on the Somme in 1916, is chairman of St. Dunstan's Institute for the Blind in London, England.

He came to Canada to attend the reunion of the war-blinded association, and he was often in evidence as the group toured the city.

The totally blind in the group had various sights described to them by the others.

Each veteran wore a jaunty red beret proudly, and many wore their medals as well.

Village Fund Events Saturday

Two fund-raising functions will be held Saturday for the Children's International Summer Village.

A summer recital featuring Joan Palmer on the piano and singer Adele Lewis will take place at 8:15 p.m. in the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria with collection going to the village.

Dancing with the Vikings Orchestra will take place at 8:45 p.m. in Norway House on Hillside. Proceeds will go to the Children's Village.

Centennial

Public Opinion Sampled

Public opinion on a centennial project is being sampled in the Victoria area, but it will not be the deciding factor in choosing a project, a member of the Greater Victoria Centennial Committee said Wednesday.

"We might ignore public opinion on one point," said committee member Walter Dods-worth.

FINANCING

He said further consideration of financing the project might tip the scales against a project the public might prefer.

The committee carved 42 submissions from the list of 46 suggested projects at a grueling two-hour and forty-minute meeting Tuesday.

FOUR PROJECTS

The four remaining are: a planetarium; a glass-domed pavilion at Clover Point; an outdoor salt water swimming pool and a stadium athletic complex.

Public opinion is being sampled on which of the four proposals would be most suitable. "However, the committee might submit two, or three, or even the whole lot to the Inter-Municipal Committee, so that committee can make the final decision," Mr. Dods-worth said.

APPROVAL

After the Inter-Municipal Committee makes its final decision, the project must be submitted to the provincial, then the federal centennial bodies, for approval. Projects which would receive either federal or provincial grants had to be eliminated.

GORGE OUT

The Gorge waterway improvement suggestion was tossed out partly because of this, Mr. Dods-worth said.

The Gorge project would also cost too much, he went on.

About 25 per cent of all suggestions were for sports stadium complexes and were all lumped together.

"It wasn't as if we had the Herculean task of discussing 46 different projects."

Out of the long list of stadium suggestions, the committee chose five $400,000 (excluding land cost) project submitted by the Greater Victoria Sports Council.

SPORTS BRIEF

The council's suggestion was complemented by a brief asking for an indoor sports auditorium, submitted by the Victoria and District Amateur Basketball Association.

The two projects were linked for the public opinion poll.

EDUCATIONAL

The planetarium would be an educational, cultural and entertainment facility, seating 200 in the main theatre, and 150 in a lecture theatre.

The pavilion idea was submitted by R. B. Shaw, 1277 Rockland.

S. T. FitzPatrick, 1370 Oliver, suggested an outdoor pool for the beach at Gyro Park, Cadboro Bay, with a suggestion that Vancouver's Kitsilano pool be used as a rough guide for estimating cost.

Noon-hour concerts promoter Kenneth Gravenor and city hall have reconciled their differences and signed a six-month contract on new terms.

Mr. Gravenor opens his new noon concert series at the playhouse at 12:15 p.m. Monday, with a new format.

The new format calls for one continuous show, with no intermission, from 12:15 to 1:15 p.m. In the show there will be at least two performances by each artist.

The artist will give the same numbers in each performance.

SMALLER FEES

In an attempt to shave costs, performers will be asked to take 50 per cent smaller fees.

Mr. Gravenor threatened early this month to call off his noon-hour shows following a boost in rental at the MacPherson Playhouse.

The old rate of $10 a performance was raised to $35 by the city, owners of the theatre.

CONTRACT TERMS

The contract, good until December, sets a flat $25-a-performance rate plus 25 per cent of the gross as the rental.

It also set the admission price at "not less than 35 cents" which has been in effect since last Friday, said Mr. Gravenor.

CITY AGREES

The city agreed to help Mr. Gravenor over his biggest financial hurdle, the hire price of a piano—as much as $80 a performance.

The city will provide the piano "as soon as is reasonably possible," reads the contract which also promises city-paid stage hand service except for special lighting.

A piano offered to the city by agents for Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Jackson, of 1628 Rockland, now in Miami, Florida, is expected to be accepted officially at the next regular council meeting. It will go to the theatre.

Saanich Fair Intends To Expand

North and South Saanich Agricultural Society is looking to the future, and intends to extend the Saanich Fair grounds to 17 acres.

According to fair board president Albert Doney the fair's attendance last year was more than 20,000 and expansion of the grounds is necessary.

"Increasing popularity of the fair and rising land values warrant the action," he said.

At a general meeting of the society it was decided to negotiate to buy four acres of property adjoining the fair ground to the north, adjacent to an area which has been used formerly for parking.

Car Mishap Injures One

Heleen Frau, 446 Moss Street, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital with facial injuries after being injured in a two-car crash at Patricia Bay Highway and Royal Oak Avenue Wednesday.

Mrs. Frau was a passenger in a car driven by Andre Frau, 446 Moss. She was admitted for observation. Police said the other car was driven by Thomas A. Cason, 27 Jedburgh.

Special City Council Meeting

'Explosive' Letter On Agenda Friday

By AL ARNASON

A letter purported to blast operation of the Victoria city engineer's department is to be read Friday morning at a special informal meeting of city council.

It is one of two explosive issues expected to be threshed out at the meeting which council will designate at its outset as either closed or open to the press.

RESIGNATION

The second issue is the resignation last week of civic architect Roderick Clark.

Details of the letter, from acting town planner A. J. van Zyl de Jong, of the engineer's department, have not been released. But it is on the meeting agenda according to Mr. de Jong.

PUBLIC PROPERTY

Whether the meeting is open or closed, the details of the letter must eventually become public property when it is officially received at a later open council meeting. But a closed meeting would shroud details of debate.

The council cannot complete official business at the informal meeting.

Mr. de Jong declined further comment except to say he had expected the meeting to be an open one.

FULL COUNCIL

It will be the first full-council discussion of the issues since they broke into the open last week.

Meanwhile, a brief, said to contain details of alleged "irregularities" in the engineer's department, will not be heard at the Friday meeting as was earlier expected.

'INFORMAL'

The Capital Region Branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada which had indicated it wished to present the brief at the meeting, was advised by letter the meeting is "an informal, private meeting of council members to which the public is not invited."

OPPORTUNITY

Mayor R. E. Wilson suggested during last week's personnel committee meeting on the Clark issue that the entire council be given the opportunity of attending the Friday meeting.

It was originally to have been held earlier but was postponed because of the funeral Tuesday of Ald. Austin Curtis, who died last Sunday.

Community Planning Association members had attended the earlier meeting with a plea for council to create a special post for Mr. Clark in which he would be responsible directly to the mayor rather than to the city manager.

FOLLOWING SPLIT

Mr. Clark's special projects division had been placed under the city manager's supervision from the engineer's department 18 months ago following a split between Mr. Clark and city engineer James Garnett.

In an interview Wednesday, Mr. Clark clarified his position on returning to work for the city.

'DEFINITELY NOT'

He said he would "definitely not" return under a plan such as the one broached by the mayor earlier this week. The plan calls for a new planning department with its head responsible to the city manager, but through the mayor and council.

The mayor had earlier indicated Mr. Clark would not be considered for the post.

The architect said he would be willing to resume his eight-year career with the city under a plan advanced by the Community Planning Association of Canada. The plan suggested Mr. Clark should be responsible only to the mayor and council.

He said he would "certainly consider" a planning position with the city under supervision of another planner—provided the job came with "some guarantee of opportunity to do future work."

Wage Talks Fail At Empress

A conciliation board will be formed to discuss a contract dispute between Empress Hotel employees and management.

The decision was made by conciliation officer W. T. McLaughlin after talks broke down Tuesday.

Both sides will be informed of the decision and then have five days to appoint a representative. An independent chairman will provide over proceedings.

The conciliation board was recommended after only one meeting.

Instant Life-Saving

Real McCoy could be battle to save life, but here lifeguard lovelies Sue Murphy, 16, of 752 Victoria and Clare Holmes, 18, of 648 Head, demonstrate skill with resuscitation equipment should it be needed, at Gorge Kinsman Park. Willing "victim" is seven-year-old Jamie Caldwell of Trailer 22, 342 Island Highway. The park is only one in Greater Victoria with equipment on spot.—(William Boucher)

Labor Council Suggests:

Shorter Day Means Work

Shorter working hours were suggested in Victoria Labor Council Wednesday night as a possible means of cutting down on unemployment.

Chairman of the unemployment

Committee delegate John Shipley reported between five and seven per cent of Greater Victoria's construction carpenters unemployed.

Painter's representative A. H. Gildemeester criticized the federal government's drive to recruit 100,000 skilled laborers from overseas.

He said the unemployment insurance fund is depleted now and there is no need to apply a further drain.

"Perhaps they should start building bigger unemployment insurance commission buildings," said Mr. Gildemeester.

New Canadians

Judge Montague Tyrwhitt-Drake will officiate at the naturalization of thirty-two new Canadians in Victoria County Court at 11 a.m. Friday.

Hi-C Car Wash

A car wash will be held by the First United Church Hi-C youth group from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Saturday, at Morrison's Esso Service, Yates and Quadra.

Bob

The engagement is announced between Eileen Daphna, daughter of Mrs. Harold Beant Jacobsen and the late Mr. Jacobsen, and Mr. Gordon Gary Eaton, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. J. Eaton of Sidney, B.C. The wedding will take place at 2:30 p.m., August 14, in Metropolitan United Church with Rev. W. R. B. Nixon of Abbotsford, B.C., officiating. — (Fillon-Simpson)

Junior League Gives $35,000 to Solarium

One of the hardest working women's groups in Victoria held its 25th annual dinner in the Empress Hotel ballroom recently. At the annual affair the Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League presented Col. A. D. Murdoch, president of the solarium's board of directors, with a cheque for $35,000, proceeds from the past year's activities.

Formed in 1939, the cheque donated at the banquet brought the league's total contribution to an impressive figure of $338,281.

Retiring president Doreen Kade was chairman at the affair which was attended by members and their husbands, special guests from the community and three members of the league's sister group in Vancouver, the Theta Club. Attending from the mainland were Doreen Madson, Jo-Anne Rothwell and Margaret Kinghorn.

Membership chairman Heather Hutton presented pins to five new members, Peta Burns, Jackie Chalmers, Joan Jiggins, Donna Reid and Sylvia Shaw.

Dr. David Boyd, chief pediatrician at the solarium, stressed continuing need for support. Although the bulk vaccine had helped to stamp out poliomyelitis, Dr. Boyd emphasized that medical advances also had increased the number of children who could be helped by the solarium.

"Thanks to such advances, like babies and other children, stricken with disease that were once fatal, are now being helped along to a normal life."

"The thalidomide drug, although a good sedative under most conditions, has also resulted in an increased need for help by babies that have suffered from its malformation effects."

In her treasurer's report, Mary Frankham announced receipts of $40,661.58 and disbursements amounting to $4,328.12. The bank balance, after donation to Solarium was $699.32.

The president's report showed that main money-raising activities were: One-night drive, $18,185.97; mail campaign, $4,343.97; master show, $4,542.34 and Kinsmen house raffle, $3,338.28.

Other projects had included assistance at Government House garden parties, a Farmette box social, refreshment stand at Goldstream and raffles.

The new executive were introduced. They are: president, Jackie Lusk; vice-president, Mary Frankham; recording secretary, Lois Walters; correspondence, Jean Carmichael; treasurer, Mavis McCall; membership chairman, Barbara Adair; representative on the solarium board, Betty Patterson and publicity, Margaret Braithwaite.

Grace was said by Beryl Nollie and Nona Demaske, a life member, presented the retiring president with a gift.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married three years and my problem is getting worse instead of better.

My husband and I get along fine when there are just the two of us but whenever we are with family or friends I get dizzy spells and my heart begins to pound like a trip hammer. Sometimes my stomach gets tied up in knots and I become nauseated and can't eat.

When I am with these same people and my husband is not present, I enjoy myself and feel just fine. I should tell you that my husband was not born in this country and his ways are a little different. My parents were opposed to our marriage but now they have accepted him. I've told myself that he is doing his best and I am no longer ashamed of the way he speaks.

What is the matter with me? —WEE SALLY.

Dear Wee: You are having anxiety symptoms because of your subconscious feelings about your husband. Some people go through life half sick, dizzy, heart poundings, stomach knots, without realizing that their physical discomfort comes from unrelieved tension.

You need outside help. Go to your family doctor for a complete physical checkup, and ask him to direct you.

Dear Ann Landers: Here is a word of warning to the mother who wanted to know if she should insist that her 17-year-old daughter go to college.

Don't do it!!! My mother forced me to go to college when I was 17 because it was fashionable. I had no interest in college. I wanted to get a job. I knew my mother would never let up until she had her way, so I went. I flunked out after the first semester and was sent home—disgraced. After several months my mother found another college that would take me. (It wasn't easy after a wash-out.) I flunked a second time and was sent home again.

That failure nearly caused me to have a nervous breakdown. I was sure I was a moron and not fit to live. It took several weeks before I could get up the nerve to go out and look for work. Fortunately, I landed a perfect job. It gave me satisfaction, dignity and a feeling of personal worth. I've had two promotions in the last year and I'm happier now than I've ever been in my life.

I'm glad you told that ambition mother college is not for everyone. If a person doesn't want to go he doesn't belong there.—TRUE STORY.

Dear Story: You are so right. In your case college was actually damaging. It accentuated your sense of failure and inadequacy. Thanks for sharing.

Dear Ann Landers: Why does a person let his mouth run away with him and say things he shouldn't? Mostly I exaggerate and distort. After I come home from a meeting or a party, or even a back fence visit, I hate myself.

I'm not a vicious person but often I feel an obligation to entertain people. Sometimes, in an attempt to be amusing, I go overboard. Then I become depressed and feel like biting off my tongue. Is there a cure for this?—BLABBERMOUTH.

Dear Blab: Make a conscious effort to speak less and to listen more. A moment of silence is a pleasant and welcome sound.

Every man, woman and child has at one time or another said things he wished he hadn't—and has regretted it—so don't feel you are a freak.

Informal Ceremony At Hospital Chapel

At an informal afternoon ceremony at the Pemberton Chapel of the Royal Jubilee Hospital, Ingrid Catharine Blake, youngest daughter of Mrs. G. Hattery of Jamaica and the late Mr. G. Hattery, was married to Alan Altelson Benton, only son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Benton of Victoria.

The bride, who was charming in a turquoise linen suit and matching hat, was given in marriage by her uncle Mr. G. Copeland. The officiating minister was Rev. Marvin Evans. The bride was attended by Mrs. M. Tucker, and groomsmen was Mr. Monty Tucker.

An informal reception followed at 1180 Victoria Ave., where a three tiered wedding cake centered the table decorated with orange blossoms and sweet heart roses. Afterwards the newly-weds left by car for Seattle and the Oregon coast. On their return they will make their home in Victoria.

Out of town guests included Mrs. M. W. Riddle and son Mark of Montreal and Mrs. R. A. Grimes of Nelson, B.C.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

The wind was really whipping the waters of the Straits into a turquoise and white frenzy yesterday afternoon but strangely enough on the southern slope of Government House it was quite sheltered. At least from the most annoying part like having to hang on to your hat.

The occasion was the planting of the delicate looking all-weather maple tree by Lady Fraser who is with her husband, Lord Fraser, on a tour of Canada.

The little ceremony was attended by blind persons of Victoria and their friends.

Lady Fraser was wearing a creamy silk and linen suit and navy silk hat in the new tan style. She was having an earnest conversation with the head gardener when I saw her. Trying not to noticeably eavesdrop, all I heard was something about there being lots of it in Queen Mary's garden. I did meet Lady Fraser later.

Mrs. Fearnes was hoping that it would be the same kind of lovely day two weeks from now for the Government House garden party. And the following Wednesday, too, when the Fearnes will cross over to Salt Spring to open the church garden fête at Harbour House.

Retired RCMP Commissioner and Mrs. G. E. Elwell-Garnes were there for the ceremony, the latter introducing Charlie Harnaby to me. Mr. Harnaby is the only person in Victoria who calls Mrs. Elwell-Garnes, Peggy.

He was talking about how warm it was in Vancouver when he went over to meet Lord Fraser in the Mainland city.

Arrive Here July 17

July 17 is a date Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Kemble have marked on their calendar. Their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James Stevenson and grandchildren, Roger and Heather, will be arriving from Malta on that day.

The Kembles have taken a summer cottage at Quilcom for a month while their family will be here. It is 11 years since their daughter has been in Victoria.

Mr. Stevenson who hails from Northern Ireland was in Malta during the siege in the Second World War. He now has a business supplying perishable commodities to the many ships calling in the port of Valetta.

Mary Stevenson is Features Editor of the Malta News. She is rather interested in knowing if there are any persons from Malta living in or around Victoria or those with relatives who would like to send messages home.

While here she will be with the Kembles at 2771 Dwydney Avenue.

Dress Up Affair

I was over in Vancouver for opening of the swank new club house at Hastings Park on Tuesday. Expected to see some Victoria faces but had to be satisfied with former Victorians.

Of course, if you are interested in racing you know the building has been open about a month and a half but this was the official deal when the Premier cut the ribbon, etc.

Just caught a glimpse of Mrs. Bennett looking very summery in white.

It was a very dress up affair or maybe Vancouverites just do this more than Victorians.

Some of the hats were real, lively conversation pieces. One woman sitting close by at lunch had on a large white straw, covered with yellow dotted veiling and large white flowers around the brim. Had to look two or three times before I was convinced that the fuzzy looking yellow things on the brim were meant to be caterpillars.

The Stuart Kemles were there, the latter looking like a dream in shades of pink. Her hat was of shaded pink silk roses.

Also saw the W.C. Mainwaring and Ted Fox. At the winning paying booth. I talked to Lydia Barnes in the next line up. Didn't know they had moved to the Mainland city about a year ago.

Terry French who has been in Vancouver for two years had lunch with us. Terry, always interested in music and drama, had some strange sore muscles.

It seems that the night before, she had, single handed, tied the contents of six crates of grapes to the arbor on the plaza of the Queen Elizabeth Theatre. All in the interest of the present A Most Happy Fella playing at the theatre. The grapes are put there each night for the audience to help themselves.

Quite naturally, Terry wasn't a bit interested in the clusters of luscious looking grapes on the laden buffet table.

First Visit Here

On her first visit west, Mrs. E. Ross-Mandell is terribly impressed with the beautiful gardens here and the glorious weather. She has been staying with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. T. P. McKelvey and will leave Saturday for her home in Enosburgh Pass, Vermont, U.S.A.

The McKelveys have taken their niece to many Island beauty spots as well as those around Victoria. She has had a marvelous time, to use her own words.

Mr. and Mrs. James Fraser, 3350 Doncaster Drive, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Lesley Stuart Fraser, to Sub-Lieut. Terence Wolfe-Milner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adrian Wolfe-Milner, Ganges, B.C. The wedding will take place at 2 p.m., July 31, in St. Luke's Anglican Church with Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Good To Make Home in Trail

Baskets of pink carnations and white stocks were at the altar in First United Church when Brenda Joyce Noon exchanged nuptial vows and rings with Mr. Allan Alexander Good, Rev. R. J. D. Morris officiated at the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Noon, 1015 Davis and the son of Mr. Joseph Good of Vermilion, Alta.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a floor-length gown of white French lace, with sequins and seed pearls trimming the bodice and Victorian sleeves. The full skirt was scalloped at the hemline and was overlaid with three tiers of net. Her shoulder-length veil was caught to a cluster of white net roses and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and Stephanotis.

Mrs. M. Hutchison was matron of honor for her sister and another sister, Miss Phyllis Noon and Miss Carolyn Scurrah were bridesmaids.

They wore sheath dresses of pink georgette over taffeta and toning headpieces edged with tulle. Their bouquets were of pink and white carnations. The flower girl, Cheryl Montague, was dressed like the senior attendants.

Mr. Robert Snodgrass was best man and showing guests to the pews were Mr. John Macintosh and Mr. Simon Jones.

The reception was held in Loughheed Banquet Hall where the bride's table held the three-tiered cake and two dozen deep pink roses. Mr. W. Easty proposed the toast.

For a wedding trip in Vermilion the bride travelled in a three-piece double knit suit with turquoise accessories. They will make their home in Trail, B.C.

Out of town guests were Mr.

J. A. Good, Mr. L. McPhee, Mr. N. McPhee, Miss Irene McPhee and Mr. K. David, Vermilion; Mr. and Mrs. L. Dewinter, Enkide, Alta.; Mr. Snodgrass, High River, Alta.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Hutchison, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. L. Banks, Kamloops; Mr. and Mrs. T. Maher, Mr. S. Shelly Clifford, Miss Audrey Jones, Miss Sharon Catt, Miss Bernadine Duncan, Vancouver, and Miss Margaret Reid.

Concern for 1,000,000 Youngsters

War Babies Will Need Jobs

BY CHARLES LA VERTU

Second of a Series

Economists and business leaders are concerned over the massive need for new jobs which will be created by the entry into the labor force, by 1970, of the 1,000,000 Canadians born right after the Second World War.

Efforts to help B.C. youngsters, by the provincial government, through the Chant report, and in co-operation with business leaders, scientists, industrialists and teachers, have resulted in a new curriculum which will make its debut in senior high schools in September.

STUDENTS' CHOICE

Greater Victoria School Superintendent John Gough pointed out that in past years, students had a choice between university program and general program (a few elected general vocational courses).

"Many students on the university program really had not the capacity for it, nor was there any intention of attending university, even had admission been possible.

"In the revision, students will have an opportunity to choose from several streams or patterns," he said.

These are the commercial, industrial education, academic, technical community services and fine arts programs.

ESSENTIAL PARTS

In each of the programs, both direct training and preparation for further training are envisaged as essential parts, according to Education Minister Peterson.

All programs are organized on the same general pattern to include four components: general education constants, program constants, specialities and electives.

General education constants will consist of courses in the fields of English, social studies, guidance and physical education, a total of four courses over Grades 11 and 12.

PROGRAM CONSTANTS

The program constants are subjects related directly to individual programs.

Specialities are selected courses within each program allowing greater depth of study, such as the science specialty on the academic program.

Electives are courses chosen freely from any subject in the curriculum for which the student has the necessary preparation.

Seven courses will be required in each of the two years, and while study periods are not forbidden, they will be allowed only at the discretion of the principal.

Graduation from a senior school will require a minimum the completion of one of the authorized programs by the student, including all prescribed general constants, program constants and specialities.

Garden Notes

Don't Crop Lawns

By M. V. CHESNUT

It is possible for two lawns to start out with the same preparation of the soil, the same grass seed, the same fertilizer, and while one will become a lovely sward of verdant, healthy grass, the other will be thin and patchy and full of weeds.

And all this difference can be caused by a faulty technique in mowing. All of us these days are looking around for labor-saving methods in the garden, but the last place to economize in labor, time and effort is in mowing the lawn.

Just about the worst policy you can follow is to put off cutting the grass until it begins to resemble a hayfield, then give it a close shave, whittling it right down to the roots in the hope of postponing the evil day when you have to mow it again. This technique is guaranteed to ruin even a good lawn in the course of a single season.

Cutting the grass, like pruning a tree, is a surgical operation; you cannot now at all without mutilating the grass plants to some extent, and the more you cut away, the more serious is the operation and the patient will recover that much more slowly.

Mowing alone will never make a good lawn out of one which was sown on poorly prepared ground, but a good technique in mowing can help a lot, fostering the growth of the better lawn grasses and helping control the worst of the weeds. The whole idea must be to weaken the lawn grasses as little as possible, and the major points to watch are closeness of cut and frequency of mowing.

If you mow closely, you are reducing the area of leaf surface—and remember that the leaves are the food factories, powered by sunlight, in which food is manufactured for the roots; the fertilizer you sprinkle on the lawn is only the raw materials to supply these factories.

When you mow closely, you are exposing the roots to the sun, for ordinarily the grass provides a little shade for its own roots. You will also admit moss, sldm bare patches, and create a wonderful seed bed for every weed seed that blows in.

I like to adjust my mower so it is cutting about 1 1/2 inches off the ground, just tipping the grass. This leaves a much thicker stand, more leaf surface to act as food factories, more shade for the roots, and weed seeds have much less chance of reaching the soil surface and find it harder to get themselves established against the competition of the vigorous grasses.

I am a great believer, too, in twice-a-week mowing rather than the usual Saturday chore—at least, while the grass is in active growth. With only three days of growth on the grass, the mower removes only the tips—minor surgery, with no great shock to the patient.

Moreover, because the mowings are very fine and short, you can mow without a grass catcher or without raking up after mowing, leaving the fine tips to mulch the roots and build up soil fertility.

This combination of high mowing and frequent mowing produces a lawn which may look a little shaggy to an eye accustomed to a putting green, but one that resists moss and weed invasion; one that remains green through our summer dry spells, and one that becomes soft and springy underfoot.

It is true that leaving the mowings on the lawn encourages earthworms, but if worms start to mar the lawn, the worms can be expelled quite easily with modern chemicals.

Finally, don't be a one-way mower. Follow a different mowing pattern each time you mow, hitting it from a different direction.

ART BUCHWALD Backgrounds Social Crisis

Society Toes Party Lines

WASHINGTON—As everyone knows, the most important crisis in Washington in the last six months was when Perle Mesta and Sen. Teddy Kennedy both gave parties on the same night in their respective homes a few weeks ago.

As time goes on, the bits and pieces of what took place on that fateful night are being put in place and I've been able to put most of them together.

This apparently is what happened. At three o'clock on Thursday morning all the society editors in Washington were telephoned and told to stand by for an important story.

They weren't given any hint of what it was, excepting that the Joint Chiefs of Staff were holding an emergency session and all caterers in Washington had been put on a red alert.

The society gals immediately started calling their sources and by seven o'clock in the morning it was known that Perle Mesta and Teddy Kennedy were highball to highball and neither one would blink.

What had happened was that Kennedy had sent out invitations for a dance in honor of his brother Bobby at the very same moment that Mrs. Mesta had decided to give a dinner dance for Sen. Mike Mansfield.

There is a fall-safe box to prevent this type of accident in Washington, but somehow it didn't work and the invitations were in the air before they could be recalled.

The news hit the town like a thunderbolt. The florists called up their reserves, all leaves of musicians were cancelled, dance waiters were brought in from outer bases and hairdressers were put on 24-hour duty.

The president, who happened to be in Texas at the time, was immediately informed of the crisis and held a meeting at his ranch.

Some of the staff wanted him to return to Washington immedately to give Mrs. Mesta much-needed support, but other advisers felt it would be best for him to stay in Texas where he wouldn't have to show his hand.

Mrs. Mesta made a statement on Friday morning saying she wasn't declaring war on the Kennedys and that her party for Sen. Mansfield was only a training exercise.

The Kennedys, who remembered that Mrs. Mesta supported Richard Nixon in 1960, scoffed at the denial and redoubled their champagne order. They said they would go ahead with the dance with or without Mike Mansfield.

The society editors, who hadn't had a thing to write about in six months, rushed to their typewriters and began filing thousands of words on the confrontation.

The town started choosing up sides.

As the time for the parties drew near, the photographers took up their positions in front of both houses, the caterers started moving in their heavy pots and pans, and tough combat-ready bartenders set up their bottles of bourbon and scotch.

The president kept in touch by telephone.

Since the Mesta party was at nine and the Kennedy dance scheduled for 11, the first champagne bottle to pop was at the Mesta stronghold.

It was the shot heard round the world.

As the evening wore on, guests nervously looked at their watches. When 11 o'clock struck, everyone held their breath.

But as luck would have it, Sen. Mansfield lost his nerve. He thanked Mrs. Mesta for the party and then picked up his wife and drove over to the Kennedy dance.

A tragic social holocaust was avoided and President Johnson was advised it was safe to return to Washington.

SYDNEY HARRIS

Somewhere mentioned having made a "verbal contract," and a purist in the group remarked that all contracts are "verbal"—that is, they are made with words. But some are "written," and others are "oral."

Such distinctions, which may seem petty and prissy, are too important to neglect or blur over; for one thing, millions of dollars have been won or lost in lawsuits because the wrong, or almost-right, word was used instead of the one intended.

The more one becomes acquainted with language, the more one is impressed with the fact that there are very few true synonyms. Words which seem, superficially, to mean the same thing, may mean different things or may have different connotations.

Consider the simple example of the four related words: male, manly, mannish, and masculine. They all refer to men, but the tone and implication of each one is somewhat distinct from the others.

"Male" is a generic term, usually used to distinguish it from its opposite, "female." "Manly" is an approving word, suggesting that a man is acting in accordance with his true nature, or that a boy is growing in the proper direction.

"Mannish" has a definitely derogatory tone to it. It is often applied to a woman who is less feminine than she ought to be, or to a certain kind of haircut or clothes she is affecting. If a man were called "mannish," it would be a reflection on his virility.

"Masculine" is quite different from the other three. We speak of some occupations as "masculine" ones, whereas we would not call them "male" or "manly" or "mannish." It bears the sense of some special strength and vigor that is quite different from "manly," which suggests more of a courageous and adventurous quality.

We could easily ring the same changes on these four words: female, feminine, womanish, and womanly. A "female" woman tends to be catty, a "feminine" one is soft and warm, a "womanish" one is querulous and petty, and a "womanly" one is capacious and giving.

I remember a foreign friend once telling me that he walked into a drug store in New York and asked the clerk for a package of "feeble" cigarettes. The clerk, of course, had no idea what he wanted—which was a pack of "mild" cigarettes.

My friend knew that "mild" meant "weak," and someone had told him that a weak person was "feeble." So a pack of "feeble" cigarettes sounded quite right to him.

As right as the English sign some French dressmaker put in her window: "Suits for Street-Walking."

Distance Distorts

By DR. STUART ROSENBERG

The story is told of a man lost in a jungle. Desperately, he sought to escape, but the thick foliage seemed to ensnare him. From the distance he beheld a frightening, terrifying sight—a ferocious beast seemed to be approaching.

Though he wished to retreat, there was no place to run; what is more, he was frozen in his tracks with fear.

Yet, as this wild object came closer, he observed, with great relief, that it seemed now to look like a domesticated, tame animal, and was not what he had previously imagined.

As the creature came closer still, he discovered, to his amazement, that it was not an animal at all, but the figure of a man.

He lurched forward to extend his arms in friendly embrace, and just then, made an even greater discovery: this was not just another man—it was his brother.

Distance distorts. From afar, even brothers cannot see each other, nor recognize brotherliness. In our "one world" we are often isolated from the "worlds" of our fellow human beings.

We understand or recognize only what we are doing, saying or thinking—and neglect to hearken to those beyond.

The stance we take is often overly-defensive; we seek primarily to protect our own position, hardly ever get to know the viewpoint of the other fellow. And this, because we see him only darkly, as through a dim glass.

We are even capable of great delusions—we imagine that we're looking at or listening to others, when indeed, we are not. Only our own voice interests us; too often, we're bored by—the sound of others.

Are we prepared to question? Or are we satisfied that we have most of the available answers? And if we think that we have the answers, what are we willing to do in order to make them available to others?

Do we really believe in what we say we believe? Or are we satisfied to say things that sound believable, without ever trying to find out what it is we honestly believe?

Do we strive to recognize the true equality of groups not our own? Or are we smugly complacent, so long as we have arrived at what we think are "final" conclusions?

What do we really know about our neighbor's religion, his family life, the things he holds dear, his profoundest aspirations?

"He is the fire of his soul, a piece of the sun in the shape of a man"—
Time.

We talk much about brotherhood, and yet, have difficulty recognizing our own brothers spite of ourselves.

We may not score with all the good and noble answers, at the start. We can never begin at the top. The tragedy is other: too many never even try to begin at the beginning.

That's why even brothers can't recognize each other. They hardly ever try.

Students Under Pressure In B.C. Today Says Chant

VANCOUVER (CP)—The man blamed by Vancouver school board for helping place British Columbia school students in a pressure-cooker educational atmosphere agrees there is too much pressure.

Mr. Chant, now chairman of the province's academic board, was chairman of a royal commission on education that brought about reorganization of B.C.'s school system.

The report said the increased pressure was due, among other factors, to Mr. Chant's royal commission study, which stressed higher educational standards.

Probe Asked On Living Cost

OTTAWA (UPI)—New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas Wednesday demanded immediate government action to prevent the rising cost of living from forcing an economic crisis.

Statistics released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics showed that the consumer price index rose one point during June to 128. It was 128 in May.

BETWEEN LIMIT
This is considerably higher than the 3 per cent which the Economic Council of Canada has prescribed as being the limit that prices should be allowed to rise annually," Douglas said in a statement.

"The time has come for Mr. Walter Gordon (minister of finance) to stop playing ostrich and start investigating the underlying causes of increased living costs."

"Are these increases justified or are they the result of market manipulations by those with an inordinate greed for more profit?"

"Mr. Gordon has a duty to order a full-scale investigation and to take appropriate action before the situation gets out of hand."

Brief to Industrial Board

Federation Seeks Higher Basic Wage

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Federation of Labor urged the provincial government today to apply a basic minimum wage of $1.50 an hour to workers in all industries.

In a brief submitted to the Board of Industrial Relations, the Labor Federation said recent approval of the Federal Labor Code which set minimum wages at $1.25 an hour doesn't hurt the cause of higher minimum wages in this province.

"This code is to have application throughout Canada—in Newfoundland, on the Prairies and in B.C.," said the Labor brief.

"We suggest that a rate of $1.25 in Newfoundland is more beneficial than in B.C.," the Federation claimed. "Indeed, such a rate in this province falls below any acceptable minimum."

The brief said the basic minimum requirements for a married worker with three children—an average family—is $200 per month, which works out to approximately $1.35 an hour for a 40-hour week.

"On this basis our Federation feels that the only acceptable minimum wage which can be applied to any industry in the province is $1.50 an hour."

UNDER ATTACK
A provincial government order setting minimum wages in the Christmas tree industry at 30 cents an hour for a 44-hour work week also came under attack.

"In view of the above we submit that the present wage order is patently ridiculous if not degrading to human dignity," said the brief.

CHARLOTTETOWN (UPI)—Prince Edward Island has become the first province in Canada to license all of its provincial area for oil exploration.

Government officials regard the move as a sign of companies are becoming increasingly optimistic about the prospects of finding oil in the area.

NDP Would Create Automation Bureau

New Democratic Party leader, Robert Strachan, announced Wednesday that an NDP government in B.C. would create a bureau on automation and technology to keep abreast of change. The announcement was contained in a statement of new party policies which Mr. Strachan called "a new dimension in government based upon this age of automation."

The objectives were drafted by the party's provincial council on authorization of the recent party convention.

The bureau on automation and technology would have a research staff that would provide the government and private individuals with information, forecasts and advice in the area of technological change.

"It cannot be emphasized too strongly that the challenge of automation is real, and, if ignored, can lead only to social dislocation and chaos," says the policy statement.

Greater government participation in business is forecast in other points:

- Establishment of a "banking agency" in which the government would hold a substantial interest;
- Sale of life insurance as well as fire and car insurance by a crown agency;
- Creation of the county system of government and reorganization of provincial-municipal finances;
- Exploitation of all types of forest resources by crown corporations;
- Pollution control for the air, land and water.

Boat Explodes

Two unidentified fishermen, believed from Victoria, were unhurt when their fishing boat blew up and burned near Bull Harbor, on the northern tip of the Island, early Wednesday.

Officials said both men were packed unhurt from the water by the crew of a second fishing boat, the Diana Nise. Their own vessel, the Lady Linda, was reported a total loss.

Masked Mannequins

Scene stealers at Wednesday's opening of the American Designer Series fall fashion preview in New York City were, left, a girl bandit in black leather shift, matching boots and mask, and girl with bridal outfit of white corduroy coat worn over matching pants and with matching hood.—(AP)

Representatives of an office employees' union and their employers, all labor unions, will hold a conciliation meeting this morning to discuss retroactive pay.

The eight office workers are employed by seven unions: United Brotherhood of Carpenters, local 1546; the Provincial Council of Carpenters; International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, local 230; International Union of Operating Engineers, local 918; Victoria Labor Council; Construction and General Laborers, local 1083; and the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, local 191.

Weekly pay for a clerk-typist was $70.60; clerk-stenographer, $81.60 and a stenographer-bookkeeper, $91.60. Both sides have agreed to a $10 raise and a two-year contract.

The point not agreed on is retroactive pay which the employees want dated back to October when the last contract ran out.

A $300 rental fee rebate request was turned down "with regret" Wednesday by aldermen on the recreation and community services committee.

The request, from the local branch of the Canadian Diabetic Association, came after its fund-raising Hawaiian luau lost $306.

Officers and men of HMCS Fraser have donated $1,210 to the Cerebral Palsy Clinic in Victoria.

The money, representing the profits from the ship's canteen, was presented to the clinic by the vessel's commanding officer, Cmdr. Richard Carle.

Accompanying the money from the destroyer-escort was a request that it be used toward the new clinic and that one of the wards be known as the Fraser Ward.

A private birthday party will be staged by the Loyal Edmonton Regiment July 16 to 18 at Oriona Armories in Edmonton on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of the 48th battalion. G. M. Beaton, P.O. Box 501, Edmonton, is the chairman of the anniversary and special events committee.

Nobody Happier Than Loggers

Dry Winds Spare Forests

A dry wind which raked exposed areas of Vancouver Island Wednesday was not felt in the timber-dry east-coast forests, and nobody was happier than the loggers. Many loggers have been able to continue at their jobs on early shift largely because of a lack of drying winds.

"The woods recover sufficiently with the dew at night to allow us to continue working," commented a MacMillan, Bledel and Powell River Ltd. official, "but a wind could change all that."

He said the company's operations are mainly on early shift, although the Kennedy

Lake division is continuing on normal shift since it is located in the wet belt of the Island.

No shutdowns were anticipated, although the company has kept the public out of its territory for the past two weekends to lessen the fire hazard.

In North Cowichan 36 men and two bulldozers worked for two hours to contain and control a fire tonight which started from a spark from a garbage fire.

The fire broke out at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, and involved three acres of bushland.

Teenagers helped fight the fire when requested to by the fire chief of North Cowichan, who also called in Maple Bay brigade and public works crews.

Foresters kept a worried eye on a slash fire on Brought Island, near Alert Bay, where a 400-acre fire was out of control.

The blaze jumped from an area of 20 acres early Wednesday, and moved from slash into standing timber.

Island Scientists to Camp On Ice Floes in Arctic

Five Vancouver Island scientists will spend from three to four weeks on two ice floes in the Arctic Ocean this summer.

will board the U.S. icebreaker USS Staten Island near Point Barrow, Alaska, Aug. 1.

They will join five scientists from the U.S. Navy's Electronics Laboratory, San Diego, for a month of gathering information for designing sonar equipment.

The scientists plan to set up camps on two ice floes in the Arctic, so that the noise of the Staten Island's engines will not interfere with under-ice sound measurements they will be taking.

The icebreaker will arrive in Esquimalt Monday, to begin loading operations.

Rescuer: 'I Wouldn't Treat a Dog Like That'

Hidden in trees: Shed where Mrs. Knight was imprisoned

By PETER TAYLOR

LADYSMITH — "I wouldn't treat a dog like that," said Tom Aussenege, a member of a search party who helped lift Mary Knight from under a pile of boards, where she had lain bound for more than 20 hours.

Mr. Aussenege, 218 Baden-

Powell Street, Ladysmith,

said: "We had difficulty lifting her. I thought someone would step on her, it was such a tight space."

The man who actually found the prominent Ladysmith woman was Sedgewick Barnes,

a Chemainus planer mill employee. "When I first stepped into the shed, she was out of my line of vision," he said.

"I went through the door, and started to move things around. I saw her feet, and called for the RCMP."

He said after she was lifted,

he saw her speak to an RCMP constable and a doctor, and then she was taken to hospital.

"Her wrists were bound very tight, she was lying on her back," he said.

Mr. Aussenege said "just looking in the shed door you couldn't see her, she had been jammed down behind a water tank in a space two feet wide."

Dr. P. J. Mitchell was called to the scene and looked after the elderly woman before she was taken to Ladysmith General Hospital.

Woman Bound in Shed $4,000 Ransom Bid

Mounties Zip Lips And Hide Inspector

An RCMP official Wednesday night refused to give any information on the investigation into the kidnapping of 52-year-old Mary Knight.

Sgt. William Murdoch of Victoria, who is supervising the investigation, was asked for a statement on the progress of the investigation.

"I can't give you any statement," he commented. "Those are my orders."

He was asked where the public was to get its information.

"All statements must come from Insp. McKay (Insp. George McKay, officer commanding, Victoria subdivision)."

Where could Insp. McKay be contacted?

"I wouldn't advise you to bother the inspector," said S/Sgt. Murdoch.

Victoria RCMP said Insp. McKay was in Ladysmith, Ladysmith RCMP said the was in Victoria.

Knight was discovered missing, her husband received a call demanding ransom. The call came in at noon Tuesday.

Six hours later Insp. McKay told reporters there was no truth to rumors of a ransom demand.

The investigation continues.

Mrs. Knight

LADYSMITH — The memory of an 82-year-old woman who lies in a hospital bed recovering from a 20-hour ordeal, is the only key which can unlock the mystery of the first recorded kidnap for ransom in B.C. history.

Mary Elizabeth Knight, wife of Ladysmith store owner J. A. Knight, is in Ladysmith General Hospital; she was not in condition to be interviewed by police Wednesday night. (See pictures, Page 6.)

When the interview will take place is up to her doctor.

What that interview produces depends on the circumstances of the abduction of the woman Tuesday morning, and her recollection of the event.

When discovered bound in a shed, Mrs. Knight looked at her two sons, Clarence and Raymond, and asked:

"What are you doing here?"

VOLUNTEER

A volunteer in a large search party found Mrs. Knight at 8:35 a.m. Wednesday, in a small shed on the Knight's beachfront property on Chemainus Road at Ladysmith.

The same shed was apparently subjected to a quick check by police on Tuesday. But Mrs. Knight, bound and gagged, was buried under wire, two-by-fours and firewood in the shed, and she was not spotted.

Joyce A. Knight, 86, who found a hardware store in Ladysmith in 1904, the year of the town's incorporation, told police he has received a demand for ransom for safe return of his wife.

$4,000 RANSOM

He said at noon Tuesday he received a telephone call demanding $4,000, to be delivered by 4 p.m.

But no other instructions were given. He said the voice demanding the ransom was that of a man.

Other members of the group were James Brown, Jack Shields, Beatty Davis, Tom Aussenege, Ted Hall, Duncan Simpson and J. Orr.

Mrs. Knight's hands had been tied with ladies' shoe laces and with the belt of her dress.

Bloodiest July 4th On Record

The Independence weekend in America was the bloodiest July 4th holiday on record and came within four deaths of the record for all summer holidays.

The 197 traffic deaths during the 72 hours not only exceeded the record of 519 set for a July 4th holiday of similar length last year, the total also surpassed the 538 figure of the four-day, 168-hour 1963 Independence weekend.

Pay: Army Up, Political Cut

SAIGON (UPI) — The government announced Wednesday the South Vietnamese army troops, among the lowest paid soldiers in the world, will get a pay increase.

The pay hike was disclosed in a communiqué signed by Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, who also is head of the air force.

At the same time Ky announced a 50 per cent pay cut for all leading government officials, including himself.

The Viet Nam army payroll is met by the United States.

Communist troops today opened a mortar barrage against a government district headquarters in Kontum province. The Viet Cong guerrillas have overrun two district capitals in the province in a drive to cut South Viet Nam in half.

The emergency landing of 8,000 U.S. Marines Wednesday at Da Nang and Qui Nhon appeared to be aimed at blocking the Viet Cong drive. (See also Page 3.)

Fear Woman, Son Held Hostage

Police Hunt Deputy-Killer

Suspect Gray

SPRINGFIELD, Ore. (AP) — Scores of police scoured western Oregon Wednesday for two killers who shot down a deputy sheriff and apparently seized a 33-year-old woman and her son as hostages.

An officer said the woman had once testified in court against an ex-convict who is being sought in connection with the case.

LOVELY WOMAN

Sheriff Harry Markwe of Lane County said he feared for Mrs. Corbin's life. "These are cold-blooded, vicious men, and she is a lovely looking woman," he said.

Deputy Ron Eggleston said police records showed Mrs. Corbin had testified, but he did not disclose any details.

Two men who got out of prison last week were sought for questioning.

They were Wilbur Marion Grey, 30, sometimes called Wilfred Grey, and Karl Cles Bowles, 24.

Grey, a native of Brunswick, Ga., served time in New York before his term in the Oregon prison for assault and robbery.

Bowles was a native of Amarillo, Texas, who served time in Colorado before his Oregon sentence for breaking and entering.

Both were released last week after completing their terms.

Police reported this chain of events:

BANK ROBBED

Two men used a shotgun and a pistol to rob a Portland bank of $13,000 Tuesday. Eight hours later a former convict paid $385 cash for a used sports car in Salem, 45 miles south of Portland.

Two hours later the deputy was slain. That was 110 miles south of Portland.

Shortly afterward police discovered Mrs. Corbin, her son,

ADEN (Reuters)—Three gunmen shot and killed Sheikh Nasser Abdullah Al Sgadi, Naib ruler of Shaib sheikhdom, here Wednesday night.

Ten rounds from automatic pistols were fired at the Naib while he was leaving his car opposite his residence in Aden's old-town area.

Sheikh Nasser was a member of the South Arabian federal council legislative body.

His tiny sheikhdom bordering the Yemen republic recently joined the South Arabian federation.

About two months ago federal troops launched a military action in his sheikhdom against dissident tribesmen operating from across the border.

No arrests have been reported so far.

Pearson Denies Lesage's Claim of Jurisdiction Transfer

Quebec Eskimos' Position to Be Clarified

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson has scheduled a press conference for today to make several announcements and state the federal position in the newly-revived Eskimo squabble with Quebec.

Mr. Pearson told a press conference Wednesday he would issue a statement later in the day on the jurisdictional dispute over Eskimo affairs. But his office said Wednesday night he would discuss the issue at today's conference instead.

The three-year-old controversy over Quebec's 2,500 Eskimos, most of whom speak

English and belong to the Anglican Church of Canada, was rekindled by Premier Jean Lesage Tuesday night when he said in Quebec he and Mr. Pearson have agreed on a gradual takeover of Eskimo affairs by the provincial government.

Mr. Pearson denied Wednesday that he had discussed this subject with the Quebec Liberal premier at their May 8 "summit meeting" in Montreal. He said they merely talked about the transfer of an obsolete radar station at Great Whale River to the province from the defence department.

Mr. Pearson said he would comment further after reading

a full account of Mr. Lesage's statement.

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage said in the legislature Wednesday that an accord in principle has been reached between Ottawa and

Quebec for the transfer in several stages of jurisdiction over Eskimos in northern Quebec.

The transfer gives to Quebec the jurisdiction held by the federal government.

The first step was decided last May 8 at a meeting of Prime Minister Pearson and Premier Lesage. It gives to Quebec the former buildings of the mid-Canada line at Riviere-a-la-Baleine.

Mr. Lesage's statement in the legislature was in reply to a question by Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson who asked confirmation of statements made to a reporter Tuesday night about the transfer of jurisdiction.

Mystery of Stalled Statement

OTTAWA — Mystery shrouding the apparent disagreement between Prime Minister Pearson and Quebec Premier Lesage over the fate of 3,000 Ungava Eskimos deepened late Wednesday when a statement promised by Mr. Pearson wasn't delivered.

Twice the Prime Minister promised to issue a statement later in the day. He told newsmen he was awaiting the text of Mr. Lesage's statement before making his own.

But the statement never came. His office said it would be issued today.

MARINER FEELS MARS' TUG

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The U.S. spacecraft Mariner 4 began feeling the gravitational pull of Mars at 2 p.m. Wednesday, just a week before it is scheduled to take the first close-up pictures of the mysterious planet.

The tug was noticed in slight changes in speed as the 575-pound spacecraft, now 128,054,720 miles from earth and 1,721,770 miles from Mars, raced toward the climax of its 228-day voyage.

Mars' pull will divert the spacecraft behind the planet and Mariner 4 will begin radioing pictures, recorded on tape during the "fly-by," after it emerges on the far side of Mars.

North Cowichan Roundup

Council Seeks New Vote To Approve Water System

NORTH COWICHAN — Council Wednesday decided to apply to the municipal affairs department asking for permission to hold another vote on a $135,000 water system soon.

The usual waiting period is six months. The same system was defeated last month. A tentative date for the new vote has been proposed for September 30 this year.

The decision followed a presentation from a delegation headed by Harold Whitfield who strongly emphasized the need for water in the area of the VLA subdivision and Drinkwater and Bell McKinnon Roads.

FEW VOTED
He said many of the 90 people who did not vote assumed the vote would pass with a safe margin. Out of 275 eligible voters only 179 turned out to cast their ballots and the vote was 107 yes and 72 no, falling short of the 60 per cent majority needed.

Prior to the council meeting 63 owner-electors in the proposed water extension district wrote letters to the municipal hall requesting an early repetition of the referendum.

MERGER
Another vote, to be held Saturday, will decide whether or not the unincorporated area of Salthair will merge with North Cowichan municipality.

The vote was ordered by the provincial government after opposition was voiced in Salthair against the proposed amalgamation. Some 608 people are eligible to vote.

Despite opposition from two residents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. White, council decided to rezone property near the White estate from rural to single dwelling.

Reeve Donald Morton cast the deciding vote against the decision. Mr. and Mrs. White felt if a subdivision is established adjacent to their holding, between Inverarity and Roome Road, sewage would seep into their well from septic tanks.

SUBDIVISION
Reeve Morton said before a subdivision can be established health inspector and town planner will have to give their approval.

Following the request by taxpayers to have Ford Road extended to Herd Road to allow children living closer to Somers School to attend that school instead of walking to Tansor School along hazardous Somers Road, council decided to find out more details about the practicability of such an extension.

Now Ford Road is only partly open, and to connect it to Herd Road two farms would have to be crossed.

Council also: Will inquire from B.C. Forest Products Ltd.

at Crofton why pulp chips have been found in considerable density at Maple Bay beach for the first time; agreed in principle to spearhead a major recreation referendum including the construction of an ice skating arena at Fuller's Lake, sharing with the City of Duncan and the Duncan Rotary club a swimming pool, and sharing with the city and the unorganized area another community centre close to Duncan.

Police to Patrol Public Campsites

NANAIMO — Police will step up patrols of public campsites and beaches in the Nanaimo area, following an increasing number of complaints of rowdiness.

Many of the complaints have come from Harwood Dam beach and Newcastle Island.

Police said in a number of cases trouble arose from children and teenagers camping without proper adult supervision.

PIPELINE

Asked about the problem Cedar district is experiencing in financing a water extension to Cedar-By-the-Sea, Mr. Glen said a district municipality could help.

"In Harwood we have long range development plan, and we are able to tax property owners fronting on where the line passes, instead of just making those at the end of the line pay for the water extension."

"It has been our experience," he added, "that a water pipeline leads to expansion in the area through where ever it passes."

BEAVER CREEK TO BUILD WATER PRESSURE TANK
ALBERNI — Beaver Creek Improvement district is planning construction of a pressure tank in the rural area's water system.

Trustee Ed Lewis said installation will take place soon, to give high pressure for servicing approximately 30 homes, north of the system's high-level tank near the end of Bainbridge Road.

The scientists plan to set up camps on two ice flows in the Arctic, so that the noise of the States Island's engines will not interfere with under-ice sound measurements they will be taking.

But before the scientists can board the vessel, supplies and equipment have to be loaded.

Five Vancouver Island scientists will spend from three to four weeks on two ice flows in the Arctic Ocean this summer.

The five men, Allen Milne, William Burroughs, Tom Hughes and John O'Malley, of Pacific Naval Laboratories, Esquimalt, and Pat Cress, oceanographer from the Fisheries Research Board station near Nanaimo, will board the U.S. icebreaker USS Staten Island near Point Barrow, Alaska, Aug. 1.

They will join five scientists from the U.S. Navy's Electronics Laboratory, San Diego, for a month of gathering information for designing sonar equipment.

The icebreaker will arrive in Esquimalt Monday, to begin loading operations.

Wednesday morning explosives will be loaded, and later, the vessel will leave for the north.

The scientists will fly to Point Barrow, and will be taken to the States Island by the vessel's helicopter Aug. 1.

They will return about Sept. 5.

The operation is a joint effort by the Canadian and U.S. navies.

Comox Target Again

COURTENAY—Peace workers here say they will try to immobilize RCAF Station Comox on Aug. 28.

The attempt will follow a mass rally in Courtenay July 14, and a demonstration at the base July 18.

"No matter how many we get out to the base July 18, we will only block the main entrance," said Ray Harrison. "We want to involve a maximum number of people."

"This is part protest demonstration, part educational seminar."

"On Aug. 28, though, we will start another serious attempt to immobilize the base, blocking more gates for a longer length of time. We may sit for 48 hours."

The July 18 demonstration will be a teach-down.

Project members working in Courtenay hope local people will participate in this phase of the campaign. "We can sense a lot of potential support from the area," Bert Vere said.

"The press, the military and the city council have all tried to give the impression that the local population, wholeheartedly supports the presence of a military base at Comox. We have found that this is not the case."

The teach-down will deal with various topics, each with a speaker and followed by group discussion. The action is modelled after those being held on campuses across the United States, Canada and in Britain.

Nanaimo Pro-Regional Officer Says:

'We May Take Over City' If District Status Denied

By PETER TAYLOR

NANAIMO — If a district municipality is not approved here, an official says surrounding areas may ask the city of Nanaimo to take them over, or "we may take over the city."

Rod Glen, chairman of the steering committee planning for both a large regional district and a district municipality around Nanaimo, said this might be the only course open to Northfield, Harwood, Chase River and Wellington, if present plans fail.

"No adverse comments so far," Mr. Glen said, describing reception of the plan.

HAMPERED
At a recent meeting of delegates from all the areas no decision was reached on forming the district or on the more revolutionary step of forming a district municipality.

The delegates agreed to go back to their respective areas and return in September with a firm commitment for either or none of the plans.

Mr. Glen said plans are hampered at the moment because so many people are on holiday, and this was one of the reasons why no meeting had yet been held with representatives from Parksville, Qualicum and Comox, who would also be invited to join the regional district.

PROBLEMS
"If the delegates are in favor of some form of amalgamation then we shall ask the government for the go ahead, and it seems to me that there will only be a referendum if some people are against the idea."

Some districts may impose qualifications on their joining, such as assurance of fire protection or ambulance service, and these problems would be ironed out before representation is made to the government.

No matter how the large, over-all plan goes, he said, Harwood would have either informal or formal talks with Northfield, Chase River and Wellington to come together in some form, probably amalgamating administration.

Medical Building Planned For Cumberland Area

By RUTH McKELLAR

CUMBERLAND — This community is making a bid for a $335,000 continuing care unit.

and hospital renovations, in the face of a move to create a hospital district in the Comox Valley.

A special meeting of Cumberland Hospital Association Tuesday voted to empower directors to seek permission for extensive renovations and new construction, at the present hospital site.

Proposed alterations to the existing acute care facilities and new equipment would amount to $70,700 and cover six points: changing the present kitchen to a canteen room and labor room, the present dining area to a nursery, present case room and nursery to a children's ward, present children's ward to a semi-private ward, re-locating the nurse's station, and utilization of operating anti-room as a central supply area.

The new construction, for which permission will be sought, would be the building of a 25-bed continuing care unit with kitchen and laundry at an estimated cost of $335,000.

COST SHARED

Part of the cost, of both renovations and new construction, would be shareable, once permission to proceed is obtained.

Grants would be approximately $172,000 and the balance of $163,000 repayable over 20 years would cost the taxpayer .3 mills.

The move on the part of the hospital association follows action taken by Courtenay city council and Courtenay-Comox chamber of commerce, when both groups held meetings Monday.

PLEBISCITE

Courtenay council voted to proceed with plans for a plebiscite seeking permission for formation of a regional district for hospital purposes, and asking the taxpayer if he is in favor of an assessment of 2.5 mills for St. Joseph's Hospital at Comox.

On the other hand, directors of the chamber voted to support a publicly-owned hospital.

In the Cumberland situation, the next step is meeting with government officials in Victoria.

Department Vetoes School Board Bid

COURTENAY — School trustees who voted Monday to match the highest tender submitted to Crown Assets Corporation for the army camp property at Sandwick, have learned the $1.2-acre purchase will not be allowed by the department of education.

The reason for the ruling is understood to be the large amount of property involved.

Wednesday the board wired crown assets and relinquished right to purchase.

The city of Courtenay will purchase the property, providing the school board is able to obtain permission to buy 20 acres of the site back from the city.

The remainder of the property would be held in reserve by the city.

Letters and wires are flying back and forth between school board and department of education in order to obtain permission for the move by the Friday deadline.

The property was first mooted as a site for a proposed regional college, but at the last board meeting a senior high was discussed as a possibility.

U.S. Taking No Chances

Ban Includes All of B.C.

As far as the B.C. government is concerned, the golden nematode worm infestation is confined to southern Vancouver Island.

But the U.S. agriculture authorities, not taking any chances, have banned entry of certain plants from all B.C. points.

The U.S. authorities have put an embargo on potatoes and any plants in soil, as well as soil itself from this province.

But bare-root nursery stock can still be admitted, if Canadian and American authorities certify it as safe.

B.C. government, meanwhile, passed an order-in-council naming the areas included in their ban of Vancouver Island crops.

In effect, the embargo covers all agricultural areas south of the Malahat, and it specifies that no "soil, plants, or plant parts with soil attached" may be moved from the area. In addition, farm machinery and equipment must be disinfected under supervision before removal from the banned area.

FARM MACHINERY — Included in the term "farm machinery" are tractors, plows, harrows, planters, diggers, graders and used bags or other containers.

The order said, however, that certain areas or operations might be exempted from the regulations if they were certified safe.

AREAS LISTED

The ban covers the following land districts: North and South Saanich, Elk Lake, Victoria, Esquimalt, Metchoan, Goldstream, Highland, Malahat, Otter and Sooke.

Meanwhile, researchers at the Patricia Bay airport laboratory report that nothing new turned up Tuesday.

TWO FARMS

On Monday it was definitely established that the worm was on two separate potato farms owned by the man who originally reported the infestation, but this was to be expected, since the same farm machinery was used on both farms.

Nobody knows for sure, however, whether other farms are infested.

TESTING SYSTEM

The reason is the sampling and testing technique, which was designed to reduce possible bias by keeping lab technicians in the dark about the location of the samples they test.

"We only have a number to work from," said Dr. W. P. Campbell, who is in charge of the lab. "That way, we can be sure to give each sample unbiased treatment."

NO WAY OF KNOWING

"But it also means that we have no way of knowing for certain which farms have been infected."

He said his staff had tested soil from 25 farms—about 60 to 70 samples in all.

SOIL CORES

Each sample contains several cores of soil one inch in diameter and six inches deep. Cores are collected at regular intervals of four or eight paces throughout a field.

A few of those samples have been found to be infected, but they could all be from the one man's property.

CONNECT NUMBERS

And until they connect the numbers up with names, nobody will know where the survey stands.

"I imagine that we'll inform any farmer with an infested field before we tell the general public," said Clar Nelson, B.C. assistant field commissioner.

Rescuer: 'I Wouldn't Treat a Dog Like That'

Hidden in trees: Shed where Mrs. Knight was imprisoned

By PETER TAYLOR

LADYSMITH — "I wouldn't treat a dog like that," said Tom Aussenege, a member of a search party who helped lift Mary Knight from under a pile of boards, where she had lain bound for more than 20 hours.

Mr. Aussenege, 218 Baden-

Powell Street, Ladysmith, said: "We had difficulty lifting her. I thought someone would step on her, it was such a tight space."

The man who actually found the prominent Ladysmith woman was Sedgewick Barnes, a Chemainus planer mill employee.

"When I first stepped into the shed, she was out of my line of vision," he said.

"I went through the door, and started to move things around. I saw her feet, and called for the RCMP."

He said after she was lifted, he saw her speak to an RCMP constable and a doctor, and then she was taken to hospital.

"Her wrists were bound very tight, she was lying on her back," he said.

Mr. Aussenege said "just looking in the shed door you couldn't see her, she had been jammed down behind a water tank in a space two feet wide."

Dr. P. J. Mitchell was called to the scene and looked after the elderly woman before she was taken to Ladysmith General Hospital.

Mounties Zip Lips And Hide Inspector

An RCMP official Wednesday night refused to give any information on the investigation into the kidnapping of 52-year-old Mary Knight.

Sgt. William Murdoch of Victoria, who is supervising the investigation, was asked for a statement on the progress of the investigation.

"I can't give you any statement," he commented. "Those are my orders."

He was asked where the public was to get its information.

"All statements must come from Insp. McKay (Insp. George McKay, officer commanding, Victoria subdivision)."

Where could Insp. McKay be contacted?

"I wouldn't advise you to bother the inspector," said S/Sgt. Murdoch.

Victoria RCMP said Insp. McKay was in Ladysmith, Ladysmith RCMP said the inspector was in Victoria.

Shortly after Mrs. Knight was discovered missing, her husband received a call demanding ransom. The call came in at noon Tuesday.

Six hours later Insp. McKay told reporters there was no truth to rumors of a ransom demand.

The investigation continues.

Aden Turmoil

Gunmen Slay Sheikh

ADEN (Reuters)—Three gunmen shot and killed Sheikh Nasser Abdullah Al Sadi, Naib ruler of Shabab sheikhdom, here Wednesday night.

Ten rounds from automatic pistols were fired at the Naib while he was leaving his car opposite his residence in Aden's old-town area.

Sheikh Nasser was a member of the South Arabian federal council legislative body.

His tiny sheikhdom bordering the Yemen republic recently joined the South Arabian federation.

About two months ago federal troops launched a military action in his sheikhdom against dissident tribesmen operating from across the border.

No arrests have been reported so far.

LADYSMITH — The memory of an 82-year-old woman who lies in a hospital bed recovering from a 20-hour ordeal, is the only key which can unlock the mystery of the first recorded kidnap for ransom in B.C. history.

Mary Elizabeth Knight, wife of Ladysmith store owner J. A. Knight, is in Ladysmith General Hospital; she was not in condition to be interviewed by police Wednesday night. (See pictures, Page 6.)

When the interview will take place is up to her doctor.

What that interview produces depends on the circumstances of the abduction of the woman Tuesday morning, and her recollection of the event.

When discovered bound in a shed, Mrs. Knight looked at her two sons, Clarence and Raymond, and asked:

"What are you doing here?"

VOLUNTEERS

A volunteer in a large search party found Mrs. Knight at 8:35 a.m. Wednesday, in a small shed on the Knight's beachfront property on Chemainus Road at Ladysmith.

The same shed was apparently subjected to a quick check by police on Tuesday. But Mrs. Knight, bound and gagged, was buried under wire, two-by-fours and firewood in the shed, and she was not spotted.

Joyce A. Knight, 55, who founded a hardware store in Ladysmith in 1904, the year of the town's incorporation, told police he has received a demand for ransom for safe return of his wife.

$4,000 RANSOM

He said at noon Tuesday he received a telephone call demanding $4,000, to be delivered by 4 p.m.

But no other instructions were given. He said the voice demanding the ransom was that of a man.

Other members of the group were James Brown, Jack Shields, Beatty Davis, Tom Aussenege, Ted Hall, Duncan Simpson and J. Orr.

Mrs. Knight's hands had been tied with ladies' shoe laces and with the belt of her dress.

Bloodiest July 4th On Record

The Independence weekend in America was the bloodiest July 4th holiday on record and came within four deaths of the record for all summer holidays.

The 537 traffic deaths during the 78 hours not only exceeded the record of 519 set for a July 4th holiday of similar length last year, the total also surpassed the 526 figure of the four-day, 168-hour 1963 Independence weekend.

Pay: Army Up, Political Cut

SAIGON (UPI) — The government announced Wednesday the South Vietnamese army troops, among the lowest paid soldiers in the world, will get a pay increase.

The pay hike was disclosed in a communiqué signed by Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, who also is head of the air force.

At the same time Ky announced a 30 per cent pay cut for all leading government officials, including himself.

The Viet Nam army payroll is met by the United States.

Communist troops today opened a mortar barrage against a government district headquarters in Kontum province. The Viet Cong guerrillas have overrun two district capitals in the province in a drive to cut South Viet Nam in half.

The emergency landing of 8,000 U.S. Marines Wednesday at Da Nang and Qui Nhon appeared to be aimed at blocking the Viet Cong drive. (See also Page 3.)

Police Hunt Deputy-Killer

BULLETIN

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Two ex-convicts, suspected of murder, bank robbery and the kidnapping of a 13-year-old boy and his mother, released four hostages unharmed early this morning outside the city limits.

Suspect Grey

SPRINGFIELD, Ore. (AP) — Scores of police scoured western Oregon Wednesday for two killers who shot down a deputy sheriff and apparently seized a 33-year-old woman and her son as hostages.

An officer said the woman had once testified in court against an ex-convict who is being sought in connection with the case.

The woman, Mrs. David Corbin and her 12-year-old son Clinton were missing from the Corbin home near where deputy sheriff Carlisle E. Smith, 33, was murdered.

LOVELY WOMAN

Sheriff Harry Marlowe of Lane County said he feared for Mrs. Corbin's life. "These are cold-blooded, vicious men, and she is a lovely looking woman," he said.

Deputy Ron Eggleston said police records showed Mrs. Corbin had testified, but he did not disclose any details.

Two men who got out of prison last week were sought for questioning.

They were Wilbur Marion Grey, 30, sometimes called Wilfred Grey, and Karl Cletus Bowles, 24.

Grey, a native of Brunswick, Ga., served time in New York before his term in the Oregon prison for assault and robbery.

Bowles was a native of Amarillo, Texas, who served time in Colorado before his Oregon sentence for breaking and entering.

Both were released last week after completing their terms.

Police reported this chain of events:

BANK ROBBERY

Two men used a shotgun and a pistol to rob a Portland bank of $13,000 Tuesday. Eight hours later a former convict paid $300 cash for a used sports car in Salem, 45 miles south of Portland.

Shortly afterward police discovered Mrs. Corbin, her son,

Pearson Denies Lesage's Claim of Jurisdiction Transfer

Quebec Eskimos' Position to Be Clarified

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The U.S. spacecraft Mariner 4 began feeling the gravitational pull of Mars at 2 p.m. Wednesday, just a week before it is scheduled to take the first close-up pictures of the mysterious planet.

The tug was noticed in slight changes in speed as the 375-pound spacecraft, now 128,054, 720 miles from earth and 1,721, 770 miles from Mars, raced toward the climax of its 228-day voyage.

Mars' pull will divert the spacecraft behind the planet and Mariner 4 will begin radioing pictures, recorded on tape during the "fly-by," after it emerges on the far side of Mars.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson has scheduled a press conference for today to make several announcements and state the federal position in the newly-revived Eskimo squabble with Quebec.

Mr. Pearson told a press conference Wednesday he would issue a statement later in the day on the jurisdictional dispute over Eskimo affairs. But his office said Wednesday night he would discuss the issue at today's conference instead.

The three-year-old controversy over Quebec's 2,500 Eskimos, most of whom speak

English and belong to the Anglican Church of Canada, was rekindled by Premier Jean Lesage Tuesday night when he said in Quebec he and Mr. Pearson have agreed on a gradual takeover of Eskimo affairs by the provincial government.

Mr. Pearson denied Wednesday that he had discussed this subject with the Quebec Liberal premier at their May 8 "summit meeting" in Montreal. He said they merely talked about the transfer of an obsolete radar station at Great Whale River to the province.

Mr. Pearson said he would comment further after reading

a full account of Mr. Lesage's statement.

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage said in the legislature Wednesday that an accord in principle has been reached between Ottawa and

Quebec for the transfer in several stages of jurisdiction over Eskimos in northern Quebec.

The transfer gives to Quebec the jurisdiction held by the federal government.

The first step was decided last May 8 at a meeting of Prime Minister Pearson and Premier Lesage. It gave to Quebec the former buildings of the mid-Canada line at Riviere-a-la-Baleine.

Mr. Lesage's statement in the legislature was in reply to a question by Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson who asked confirmation of statements made to a reporter Tuesday night about the transfer of jurisdiction.

Mystery of Stalled Statement

By FRASER KELLY
Calculated Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Mystery shrouding the apparent disagreement between Prime Minister Pearson and Quebec Premier Lesage over the fate of 3,000 Ungava Eskimos deepened late Wednesday when a statement promised by Mr. Pearson wasn't delivered.

Twice the Prime Minister promised to issue a statement later in the day. He told newsmen he was awaiting the text of Mr. Lesage's statement before making his own.

But the statement never came. His office said it would be issued today.
